Sylvia Porter Sewing machine buyers beware

Of all the home appliances on which you may be seriously misled or gypped in the marketplace today, sewing machines rank high. And one reason is the prevalence of off-brands or "private labels" in sewing machines.

To grasp the magnitude of this problem, you must first realize that the centuries-old home sewing story has been completely rewritten in the U.S. in recent years. The boom is truly fabulous — knows no boundaries, crosses all income levels, all age categories, all regions, all color and ethnic groups.

Some 45 million American women and girls are now involved in making apparel at home, over 12 million of them teenage girls. About 5 1/2 million girls study home sewing in school each year, the teen market is the fastest growing segment in the sewing industry, and men are learning how to sew in mounting numbers too.

It is against this background that the problem of off-brands — particularly in low-priced machines — arises. Here are facts of which you well may not be aware:

There are no sewing machines manufactured in the U.S. today, with the exception of one or perhaps two Singer models. Singer also makes its machines in plants in Canada, England and Italy, which are then brought into the U.S. The expensive machines are normally European-manufactured (Switzerland — Bernina and Elna; Sweden — Viking; Italy — Necchi, Vigorelli; Germany — Pfaff).

All other machines, no matter what the label or name, are manufactured in Japan. This becomes a problem, because it is common practice for large dealers or chains to import Japanese machines into this country with no names on them. Names are then printed on, or name plates are screwed on — and the machines are sold by that dealer or a member-store of the chain, usually in a limited geographic area.

In blunt words, if you buy an off-brand in New York and later move to Los Angeles, you probably will find that you are unable to locate a dealer who handles that brand. For practical purposes, therefore, service and parts are unattainable. A dealer in Los Angeles may handle exactly the same sewing machine but sell it under his own name. He is reluctant to accept your machine for service because he cannot tell from the outside if he has the parts or can get them.

The simplest way out, and the usual answer is, "This cannot be repaired," even though in reality the parts are often interchangeable in Japanese machines.

"Let's admit that the sewing machine business in the U.S. has used sales and promotional techniques among the most misleading in the appliance business," says Ray Dancer, general manager of the U.S. subsidiary of Bernina of Switzerland, second only to Singer in distribution of European-made machines in the U.S. and among the top five sewing machine companies in the world.

"That goes for large chains and small dealers alike," he accuses. "While strong crackdowns by government and consumer groups have helped cut out unacceptable practices, problems remain acute, particularly with unbranded or very low-priced machines."

You must, Dancer warns, "be a little more resourceful and careful in buying, and a little more forceful in complaining if something goes wrong" with your machine.

How should you shop? What type machine should you buy?

—Make up your mind how you will use your machine before you buy and decide what you want your new machine to be able to do. Take a sewing course or two first if you do not know and rent a machine while you're doing this.

—Stick to a brand sold by a company which has an extensive network of sales and service dealerships throughout the country. If properly used and cared for, even a medium priced sewing machine will last a lifetime; so try to be reasonably certain that the manufacturer will be around as long as his machine.

—If you are a beginner, start with a basic portable machine that has straight, reverse and zigzag stitching capabilities and which often is available for less than $100 — and try several basic models before deciding on one. Or as an alternative, buy a second-hand or reconditioned machine from a dealer you are sure you can trust and learn on that one.

Don't be pushed into a decision beyond your needs or budget. Start basic and trade up as your needs and skills increase.

Be suspicious if the dealer demonstrates a machine only on the very stiff cotton fabric that all dealers use. Bring some of your own fabrics and try them on the machine yourself. Tests such as this are especially important if you're buying an inexpensive machine.

Sheinwold on bridge Simplest plan best in complicated hands

"To everything there is a season," says the Good Book, "and a time to every purpose under the heaven: a time to be born, and a time to die." If King Solomon had been a bridge player, he might have added: "a time to play spades and a time to draw trumps." It's not enough to do the right thing; you have to do it at the right time.

West opened the deuce of clubs and South properly finessed with dummy's jack. This drove out the ace. East returned his singleton spade, but South shrewdly hopped right up with the ace. It would have been fatal to play low since West would have taken the king of spades and given his partner a spade ruff.

Now South had several reasonable ways to play the hand. He could try to set up his own hearts or dummy's spades or he could play for a crossruff.

Any of the three methods might work, but the simplest and surest was the establishment of dummy's spades. This was bound to work no matter how badly the trumps or spades might break, but the time wasn't ripe.

South had to draw three rounds of trumps after winning the second trick with the ace of spades. Then he could afford to lead a spade toward dummy.

West shrewdly played low, allowing dummy to win with the ten. This gave South the chance to switch to some crossruff idea that wouldn't work, but South was not to be deterred.

Declarer led the queen of spades from dummy and discarded a heart from his hand. There was no advantage in refusing this trick so West took it. This established dummy's jack of spades.

Now South could discard a second heart on the jack of spades, a third heart on the king of clubs and could ruff the fourth and fifth hearts with dummy's trumps.

Daily Question

Partner deals and bids one spade and the next player passes. You hold: S-Q J 10 5 2 H-None D-9 8 7 3 2 C-K J 4. What do you say?

Answer: Bid four spades. This shows excellent trump support (usually five cards or more), a singleton or void and a count of not more than nine points in high cards.

Kiddie cocktail may lead to early drinking

Giving children a kiddie cocktail—a nonalcoholic drink of ginger ale, grenadine, and maraschino cherry juice which simulates the appearance of an adult cocktail and is sometimes served to children in restaurants—may lead to early alcoholic drinking, says consulting psychologist, Dr. Philip Reidda.

The kiddie cocktail encourages children to adopt an adult habit, drinking, in order to gain adult approval, says Dr. Reidda of Elk Grove Village, near Chicago. Starting to drink at an early age in imitation of adults is frequently the pattern reported by alcoholics.

"Don't make alcohol a symbol of having fun," he warns parents. "Children should learn alcohol is a potentially dangerous drug."

Police & fire beat

CHILTON—Three Fox Cities persons were taken to Calumet Memorial Hospital after they were injured in a two-car crash on State 57, four miles north of Chilton, about 7:30 a.m. today.

One driver, James P. Loughran, 23, 2200 S. Greenview St., Appleton, sustained a cut lip, while one passenger, Kim Helf, 19, 2512 N. Drew St., received a head cut. Another passenger, Richard Beirl, 22, 216 1/2 Columbia Ave., Neenah, suffered a severe head injury.

Calumet County police said the Loughran auto was headed north on 57 when it struck the rear of the second car, driven by Robert E. Miller, route 2, Hortonville, which was stopped for a school bus. Miller was not injured. Both cars were destroyed.

Firemen were called to the Earl Vandebogart residence, 1013 W. Spring St., about 11:20 a.m. Monday to extinguish a smoldering fire in the front seat of a 1964 auto owned by Robert Vandebogart.

The fire apparently was caused by a burning cigarette. No damage estimate was given.

Aaron Gehring, 70, 721 W. Harris St., was taken by private ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital after he suffered face and nose cuts when he fell and struck his head on a concrete step in front of Wettengel's Sew-Vac Shop, 108 S. State St., about 11:40 a.m. Monday.

A school crossing guard, Winifred Refke, 59, 200 E. Calumet St., was taken by the fire department rescue squad to St. Elizabeth Hospital after she was injured in a fall in the 1800 block of S. Memorial Drive about 12:30 p.m. Monday.

Police said she was walking toward her station at the intersection of Oneida and Foster streets when she tripped on the sidewalk and sustained lip, hand and knee injuries.

Twenty-two pigeons valued together at $30 were reported set free after a break-in to their coop behind the Robert VanDera residence, 312 E. Fremont St., over the weekend.

Police said some of the birds had returned by Monday, after only three were found in the coop after the break-in. Police said entry was gained by breaking off a lock.

Steven D. Budrick, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Budrick, 920 N. Durkee St., was taken by private ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital after he complained of side pains received in a fall from his bicycle about 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Police said the boy was riding down a hill in the 200 block of Green Bay Road when he fell from the bike.

FREEDOM—Joan A. Newhouse, 39, route 1, Kaukauna, sustained neck injuries in a two-car accident near the intersection of Outagamie County Trunks J and S, Town of Kaukauna, about 6:20 p.m. Monday.

Police said her car was northbound on J and was slowing for the intersection with S when it was struck from the rear by the second car, driven by Henry M. Weiland, 58, route 2, Kaukauna.

Several items valued together at more than $340 were reported taken in a break-in during the past 10 days at the Northern Hay & Grain Co., 2915 Casaloma Drive.

Police said entry was gained by forcing open the front door, and that the missing goods included a battery charger, electric gate, pipe cutters, tire hammer and set of screw drivers.

STOCKBRIDGE—One village youth is still hospitalized today and two companions were treated and released after a one-car accident at about 1:26 a.m. Saturday on State 55 and County Trunk EE north of here.

Wayne Marose, 16, is recovering from a broken jaw at Kaukauna Community Hospital. His brother, Richard, 15, was treated for a knee abrasion and released from the Kaukauna hospital.

The driver of the auto, Keith D. Peterson, 17, also of Stockbridge, sustained a cut to his neck in the accident and was taken to Calumet Memorial Hospital, Chilton, treated and released.

The Peterson auto was southbound on 55 when it went over the center line, hit a driveway abutment and flipped end over end, according to the traffic report.

Trading stamp issue again before Senate

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Trading stamps represent a "sticky, green bloodsucker" to Wisconsin consumers, the Senate's Industry, Labor, Taxation and Banking Committee was told Monday.

The statement came at a hearing on a bill to allow redemption of trading stamps for merchandise as well as cash. Wisconsin is one of three states which prohibit redemption of stamps for merchandise, although permitting cash redemption.

A variety of manufacturing, retail and consumer representatives urged adoption of the measure, arguing it would halt the flow of state consumers to Illinois and Minnesota where they can get products for their stamps.

However, others claimed merchandise redemption centers would take jobs and customers away from small, independent retail stores.

A representative of the state's largest grocery chain, Kohl's, said expansion of trading stamp promotions would result in higher prices to consumers.

"Stamps are one form of utilizing the promotion dollar every firm has," Victor Albiero of Premium Industry Suppliers said. "The bill allows state manufacturers to compete."

It was disputed by Dick Peterson,

Incompetency guidelines sought

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Supreme Court was asked Monday for a legal yardstick to help provide hospitalization for criminal suspects considered mentally incompetent for trial.

A class-action petition filed by state public defender Howard Eisenberg could involve dozens of persons whose detention in Central State Hospital for the criminally insane has been questioned on constitutional grounds.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last year in an Indiana case that a suspect cannot be detained for mental incompetency longer than is necessary to determine competency.

Wisconsin statutes say a suspect found incompetent and unable to stand trial can be made a ward of the Department of Health and Social Services for a period equal to the maximum term he might have served had he been convicted.

But a state court has ruled six months is long enough to determine whether a suspect is competent, and Eisenberg's action represents eight persons who have been in Central State at least six

Hitchhiker has ample enthusiasm

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A hitchhiking trip which cost him his legs and one arm 22 years ago hasn't dampened Charlie Brown's enthusiasm for life or his ability to use his remaining thumb to go places.

"My life after the accident has been beautiful," said Brown, 29, a native of Oshkosh, Wis., who now calls his home "the U.S."

"I don't consider myself handicapped," added Brown, passing through Fort Myers Monday enroute to Miami and what he hopes will be a chance to meet comedian Jackie Gleason.

"Everybody says he looks like me," said Brown as he sat in his wheel chair at the edge of Fort Myers, duffel bag on his lap and thumb extended for passing motorists.

"I started hitchhiking when I was seven years old," he said. "I started with short trips for a couple of miles and have since graduated to trips around the world."

Brown said he lost his limbs when he hopped a freight train near St. Louis at age 15. He said he was clinging outside a box car when the train went through a tunnel, wedging him against a wall. "I was unconscious for the next three months," he said. "The doctors didn't think I would make it."

"I had to fight for my life and with the help of God I made it."

"I preach everywhere I go and I pray every day," he said. "I want to tell people I have the faith and love God. I believe God has been good to me and given me an interesting and rewarding life."

representing Kohl's food stores at Waupaca, and L.C. Wood, a spokesman for the Wisconsin Retail Hardware Association.

"This is Alice in Wonderland logic," Peterson said. "Our profit is one per cent of sales, and these stamps cost over two per cent. The consumer has to pay for these stamps."

"Beware the green bloodsucker," Peterson said.

Wood said the bill would cost the retail industry a number of jobs and that manufacturers wouldn't sell more products at lower prices. He said products would be sold through a large New York-based firm which owns S&H Green Stamps, rather than state owned independent hardware dealers.

Wood called the trading stamp industry "monopolistic," saying it forced customers to redeem stamps at "a company store" owned and operated by the stamp company, and to pay company set prices for the products.

"I assure you that labor is interested in this bill because it means jobs," Allied Industrial Workers representative Joe Gruber of Campbellsport said.

The bill has been before the legislature six times previously, Wood said. He urged that it be beaten again.

The committee took no action on the measure.

Technical questions raised about school time for religion study

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Technical questions were raised Monday over a bill which would require public schools to let students attend private religious classes.

William G. Rice, representing the American Civil Liberties Union, said the legislation as drafted by the Assembly could create legal problems because of its language.

Rice testified before the Senate's Health, Education and Welfare Committee on a bill which reflects voter approval of a constitutional amendment in a 1972 referendum.

The amendment, approved about 595,000-585,000, says a school board "may" agree to released time for religious instruction, Rice said.

But enabling legislation approved 83-14 by the Assembly April 25 may be unconstitutional because it says school boards "shall" allow release of students if parents or guardians submit a written request, he testified.

The bill proposes students be allowed time off from school for up to three hours a week for attendance at religious orientation.

The resolution as drafted for the 1972 ballot allows "the legislature to authorize the release of public school pupils during regular school hours for the purpose of religious instruction outside the public schools."

Supporters of the bill outnumbered its critics at the Senate hearing.

Vernon Jensen, a spokesman for Preserve Our Public Schools, said his group feels church instruction should be extracurricular.

"We do not believe a student who is not too busy to play football after school," he said, "is too busy to get religious instruction after school."

Among the bill's supporters was the Rev. A. J. Downing of Milwaukee, a spokesman for the Wisconsin Council of Churches, and the American Baptist Convention.

Religion is no less important than

Supervisors want special parking, too

Outagamie County Board supervisors want the same parking privileges around the courthouse as their aldermanic counterparts have around city hall.

The county board's judiciary and enforcement committee Monday recommended that supervisors be given parking stickers which would give them immunity from city parking regulations on designated streets around the courthouse.

Aldermen have such immunity on designated streets around city hall.

Supv. Fred Rehfeldt, judiciary committee chairman, who proposed the parking sticker plan, also is a member of the City Council.

science, mathematics or other academic learning, Downing said.

"Man has more to live for than just scientific teachings," Downing argued.

The enabling legislation, he said, will "bring moral character into the students' lives."

Second charge expected after first dismissed

OSHKOSH — A second complaint charging a Chilton man with driving while under the influence of intoxicants is expected to be brought soon after the first such charge was dismissed in County Court Monday.

A citation naming Ralph R. Hertel, 36, was written out by a county sheriff's officer after the April 11 traffic accident in which Joseph A. Wissink, 16, Neenah, was killed as he walked along County Trunk A. Hertel was given a copy of the complaint that listed Monday as the date for a court appearance. However, the charge was never filed in County Court, so when the scheduled appearance arrived, Judge James V. Sitter dismissed the charge.

Apparently, the citation was not turned over to the court because officials were awaiting a decision on whether a more serious charge would be filed or whether the case would be dropped pending the outcome of a coroner's inquest into the traffic death. The inquest was held April 30. The district attorney's office was to make the decision on the case.

According to a spokesman in the district attorney's office, the same charge—driving while under the influence of intoxicants—probably will be filed again. A new complaint would then have to be served on Hertel.

MILWAUKEE—Thirteen women from Outagamie County Chapter of AAMA are attending the 15th annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Society of the American Association of Medical Assistants, Inc., being held from May 18 through 20 at Holiday Inn-Central.

The meeting, "Professional Pathways to Progress," will feature the annual business meeting of the society's house of delegates on Friday.

The educational session will convene on Saturday. First speaker will be Cynthia Stephens, assistant professor of English, Alverno College, Milwaukee, who will discuss "The Status of Women in the Professions," a look at today's professional women.

Derward Lepley, M.D., thoracic-cardiovascular surgeon, will discuss "Cardiac Surgery—1973." Lepley, especially noted for his work with heart transplantation techniques, is presently clinical professor and chairman of the Department of Thoracic-Cardiovascular Surgery of the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. Saturday afternoon will feature a national health seminar: "Critical Legislative Issues on the State and National Health Scene: Their Effect on the Physician, His Staff, and the Community." The panel will consist of Michael McManus, executive director of the Medical Society of Milwaukee County; Thomas H. Girard, executive director and chief administrative officer of Surgical Care-Blue Shield, Milwaukee, and DeLore Williams, M.D., West Allis, a physician active on the public policy committee of the Wisconsin State Medical Society.

Keynote of the convention will be the appearance of Mrs. Betty Anick, the world's second longest living heart transplant patient. Mrs. Anik, of West Allis, will discuss her experiences both before and after surgery. Saturday evening will feature installation of officers of the Wisconsin Society.

Gift certificate becomes challenge to spend

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Always look a gift horse in the mouth. Otherwise it might bite you.

My steed arrived through the courtesy of my husband, who had won a $10 gift certificate at an office party.

He turned it over to me because (choose one): he is generous to a fault; he does not need anything; the certificate came from a woman's specialty shop.

"Easy come, easy go," I muttered happily as I dashed off to the store to exchange my windfall for something really frivolous. Alas! Frivolity comes with a high price tag in that particular shop. I decided to settle for practicality.

Unfortunately, the store's practical things were also in the luxury class. Nowhere could I find a common meeting ground for my desires and the face value of my certificate. I tucked it in my purse to await the seasonal markdowns.

The spring sales came and I went bargain hunting. But with the temperature in the 70s I didn't feel a drastic need for a fringed mohair scarf. Nor did the wool-lined gloves excite my interest.

I regularly transferred the certificate into the pocketbook du jour, never knowing when I might find my heart's desire. One day as I passed the store I decided to see if anything new — and cheap — had arrived, and reached for the now-frayed certificate.

Gone! Lost! A ten-dollar treat forever denied me! I chided myself for not having spent it speedily if not well.

When I eventually found it tucked in another purse I decided to use it immediately. My visit to the shop failed to turn up anything I really wanted so I finally concluded that an extra bottle of my favorite cologne would not go amiss. It came to $7.50, plus tax. The saleslady regretfully declared that my change could only be given in a store scrip. Knowing full well that I could never find anything to use that $2-plus on, I grandly announced I would just take another bottle of the cologne.

With the tax, the transaction came to $16.05.

While the whole thing cost me $6.05, a lot of aisle-pounding and some moments of despair, I take comfort in the fact that I should still be smelling good by the time the next gift horse trots my way.

Caring for the sick

Taking care of the sick takes patience and skill. Lifting "patient" Kim Miller properly so as not to injure herself is Kim DeShaney.

Flammable liquids are potential hazards

CHICAGO—More than "Ole Sol" can give you a nasty burn this summer. The real and more hazardous scorchers come in a can. According to the government, flammable liquids accidents cause an estimated 60,000 burn injuries each year in the U.S.

Gasoline is the worst offender with lighter fluids coming in second, notes the Bureau of Product Safety. "Turpentine, some paints and paint thinners, kerosene, butane, gasoline, lighter fluids, and barbecue starter fluid — all so much a part of our spring cleanup and summer fun scene are potential killers if improperly used," cautions Phil Dykstra of the National Safety Council's Home Department.

Warm weather and flammable liquids make an especially dangerous duo. "As temperatures increase, a flammable liquid becomes even more hazardous because of the increase in the rate at which the vapors are evolved. And it is often the vapor not the flammable liquid itself that ignites, burns and cause the damage. What is even worse, vapors from a flammable liquid usually cannot be seen and may be difficult to detect," says Dykstra.

Many common, everyday conditions or items found in every home can cause vapors to ignite in a death-dealing explosion. "Open flames, hot surfaces, sparks resulting from the contact of metals, operation of electrical equipment, discharges of static electricity, smoking, burning matches can produce a dangerous situation when vapors are present," Dykstra notes. "The volatile properties of flammable liquids and the public's ignorance of them is a dangerous sad fact of life — or death."

"Handling flammable cleaning agents, solvents and fuels with a little respect — t-l-c — thoughtful, level headed concern for their harmful potential is the key to their safe use," he suggests. "Read the label carefully and follow the directions to the letter and never, never use a flammable liquid around an open flame."

Substitutions of one flammable liquid for another — even in an emergency — should be avoided. "It is an especially dangerous practice to use gasoline in place of commercial liquid barbecue starter fluid," Dykstra warns.

Since gasoline is both extremely flammable and widely available, Dykstra is especially concerned about its proper use. Gasoline should never be used for cleaning purposes or for starting fires or boosting fires. Gas operated power mowers must be shut off and should be allowed to cool down before more gas is added to their tanks, he says. "Gas is a highly flammable fuel and its use must be narrowly confined to the manufacturer's intended purpose," notes Dykstra.

Other suggestions for using flammable liquids safely are:

1. Always handle flammable liquids in a well-ventilated area.

2. Avoid inhaling the vapors or letting the flammable liquid come in direct contact with the skin or clothes.

3. Store flammable liquids away from children and pets and away from gas appliances such as clothes dryers, gas heaters, water heaters, etc.

What to do in case a fire does start? A dry chemical extinguisher is one of the better ways to put out a flammable liquid fire, Dykstra says. "They are available at a reasonable cost and every home should have one." He notes that they can be used to fight grease fires. A wool blanket also may be used to smother the fire.

Dykstra says, "Flammable liquids are valuable tools for brightening up everyday life. They help light barbecues, run machinery, light lamps. But they shouldn't be used to help you and your home go out in a blaze of glory."

Durable press fabric boon for homemakers

Durable press finishes on clothing and household items can be as valuable to today's homemaker as a part-time maid.

To receive full benefits from easy care fabrics, the homemaker must know the best ways to wash and dry them, according to "Durable Press," a University of Wisconsin-Extension bulletin.

First, it's important to read and save all care labels and hangtags from durable press items. For easy reference, keep them with your washer and dryer instructions near the machines.

Frequent laundering is a key to easy care. Permanent press is harder to clean when heavily soiled and stained.

Treat stains with a detergent as soon as possible, and allow at least one hour to loosen the soil. Large areas of stubborn stains may require overnight treatment. Always pretreat collar and cuff soil lines before washing, using a liquid detergent or paste of granular detergent and hot water.

To prolong garment life, turn clothing inside out before placing it in machines. This reduces wear, especially on creased items such as pleated skirts and pant legs.

When sorting, separate items according to fabrics and colors. Place white with other whites, light and medium hues together and dark shades in separate loads. When possible, wash similar fabrics together as some tend to pick up lint as well as color.

To eliminate crowding, use small loads for easy care fabrics. Half the washer's normal capacity provides efficient agitation and spin cycles and helps eliminate wrinkles.

Most new machines have durable press or wash and wear cycles. Follow instructions provided with your machine if the wash and wear setting appears on the controls. A five minute wash cycle should be adequate if your machine doesn't have the new cycle setting. Set the dial at slow agitation speed, if possible, to reduce wrinkles.

For least wrinkling, use warm or cool water during the wash cycle. However, hot water may be needed to remove soil or grease.

Always set the rinse cycle for warm or cool water because this stage is important in reducing wrinkles.

'Special delivery' infuriates supervisor

It's not that John Kellogg doesn't like policemen. It's just that he doesn't like a uniformed policeman driving up to his door in a marked squad car at supper time.

After all, what are the neighbors to think.

"It infuriated me," said Kellogg, an Outagamie County Board member from Appleton.

What made him even more angry, he told his board of social services Monday, is that the letter the county policeman delivered came from Supv. Marvin Babbitt of Seymour, head of the county's personnel committee.

It was an unnecessary expense, Kellogg insisted.

Last month several clerk-typists in the county department of social services filed a complaint with the courthouse grievance committee, stating that their pay was lower than that of other county employees in similar positions.

The grievance committee forwarded the complaint to Welfare Director James E. Stampp who sent copies of his letter of response to several county officials, including Babbitt and the other two members of the personnel committee, Sylvester Lenz and Lawrence Brockman.

Babbitt got his copy May 9 and, in a letter dated May 10, informed Stampp and the social services board that it appeared "extremely urgent" that the grievance be discussed with his personnel panel on May 16.

It was so urgent, Babbitt indicated, that he went to the sheriff's department and got a patrolman to hand deliver his letter to the seven board of social services members.

Kellogg, an Appleton attorney, got his letter at 6:10 p.m. last Thursday.

He saw Babbitt's action as "an attempt to embarrass and insult" the social services board, which has never enjoyed the best of relations with Babbitt and his committee.

There was no urgency in getting the letters delivered, Kellogg sputtered. The meeting wasn't for six days, which permitted plenty of time for mail delivery, he added.

Kellogg was so upset that he checked with the sheriff's department and found that, based on the patrolman's salary for the 2 1/2 hours it took him to get to all seven board members and the cost of driving the 80 miles, taxpayers paid $23.35 to have the letters delivered.

Kellogg believed there were other more important things the patrolman could have been doing. Like patrolling the highways.

Had Babbitt mailed the letters, it would have cost taxpayers 56 cents, Kellogg remarked. That's about one-fortieth the cost of police delivery.

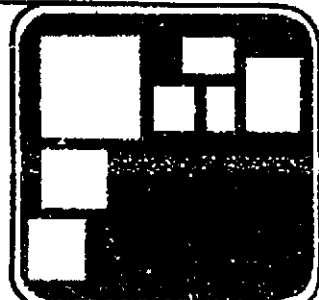

Besides, Kellogg continued, the social services board and the personnel panel have been in contact over the employee pay dispute since last October. The board has frequently criticized the personnel

Kaukauna OKs bonds

BY ED VAN BERKEL
Post-Crescent staff writer

KAUKAUNA — Two major improvements for the city came one step closer to reality Monday night as the board of public works approved an initial bonding resolution for a $1.6 million industrial park and a $350,000 new fixed span for the Wisconsin Avenue bridge.

The industrial bonding resolution when finalized would permit the city to purchase a 280-acre industrial park site and complete the first phase of development of the area. The first phase includes $422,000 in sanitary sewer work, $678,000 in storm sewer work, a $143,000 bituminous road program and $100,000 for water installation.

Action came after a lengthy discussion on development of the park by Al Loth, representative of Donohue Engineering, Sheboygan, the firm engaged to assist the city with planning and development of the park. Loth will serve as consulting engineer or project engineer for the city.

The storm sewer portion of the initial phase will serve the industrial park area in its entirety, but second and third phase development will necessitate additional sanitary sewer, water and paving work.

Ald. James McDaniel (3rd) expressed surprise at the estimated cost of development but told the board that the city must move forward as if the work on the park did not get off the ground, the city would not have an industrial park. He said that he realized the cost would be great, but that the return to the city would be even greater.

Ald. Lloyd Kloehe (2nd) noted that it "takes dollars to make dollars" and said the city had long been criticized for not having an industrial park.

Mayor Robert La Plante told aldermen, "We have been working on an industrial park since September of last year and now you as members of the council have reached the crossroads where a decision is required. There is only one way to go. Everything up to now has been done properly, good planning was followed and I feel we should move ahead and take action to see that the park becomes a reality."

After the talk by La Plante, the board voted unanimously to endorse the bonding resolution.

Earlier the board had heard James L. Fowler, engineer with Owen Ayres and Associates, Eau Claire consulting engineers, speak on the proposed replacement of both the fixed and lift portions of the Wisconsin Avenue bridge. He estimated cost of replacing the two spans at $1.9 million.

This would have included relocating and closing of some streets connecting with the bridge approaches including a portion of Wisconsin Avenue, John Street and the extension of Catherine Street.

Board members expressed amazement at the anticipated cost and took no action on the bridge until after it was learned what industrial park development would cost. When the industrial park bond resolution was passed, aldermen decided to pass only a portion of the bridge project, that involving the fixed span.

Several aldermen expressed the need to do the complete job, but were reluctant to undertake a project which would require such a large bond issue. Ald. Franklin Potter (3rd) cast the lone vote against a smaller bridge bond project, noting that delay in construction could result only in increased costs for replacing the lift span in the future.

City Clerk Karl E. Marzahl informed the board that the city presently had $425,000 bonded indebtedness and could bond up to $5 million. Even with bond issues approved Monday, he said the city would be at less than one-half its bonding limit.

La Plante said he favored replacing both bridges, but did not push the issue as he was more concerned about industrial park development.

The board authorized the mayor to contact Outagamie County to determine whether the city could receive financial aid for construction of the new bridge.

Metro police 'held back'

While not admitting that the county board had killed his study, Supv. Fred Rehfeldt, chairman of the board's judiciary and enforcement committee, Monday agreed to "hold in abeyance" further action on the committee's look into a consolidated police force in the county.

That action came after a lengthy argument in committee during which Rehfeldt contended the tape recording of last Tuesday's board proceedings got things mixed up.

Rehfeldt claimed the board had rejected only the committee request to permit Supv. Eugene Kloes to continue serving on the committee until the completion of the study. "My motion was to keep Kloes on the committee," Rehfeldt said. "That's what lost. The newspaper screwed it up."

Kloes formerly was a member of the judiciary and enforcement committee and headed the subcommittee studying metropolitan police. At the April reorganization of the board Kloes moved to the highway committee.

Supv. R. Clayton Van Dyke, a committee member, said the "board voted to kill the study without any knowledge of what we were trying to come up with."

Rehfeldt corrected Van Dyke. "The board didn't stop the study; it only stopped Kloes."

Committee Secretary Emmett Root disagreed. He suggested that the tape recording of the board proceedings be checked and that Corp. Counsel William Schuh be asked his opinion. Besides, he said, Rehfeldt hadn't told the board it would cost another $300 to complete the study.

"The county spends hundreds of thousands of dollars and they piddle over a few hundred," Rehfeldt replied.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, who had overheard part of the debate, said, "I gave this committee the most important issue currently before the board. There's no time for metropolitan police."

"Don't get quibbly over a couple of bucks," Rehfeldt told DeLaHunt.

Schools to keep nursing staffers

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

The board of education Monday night received strong pleas from separate delegations to continue and expand the special learning difficulties program; to maintain a four-member school nursing staff; and to provide better education facilities for the pupils in the three Town of Grand Chute elementary schools.

The board promised to take a close look at the special learning program and the Grand Chute school situation, and voted 4-1 to maintain the four member nursing staff.

The requests came during a marathon session when a number of parents of children with the learning difficulties told of their experiences or needs, and when a spokesman for the parochial schools and several letters urged the board to maintain the level of nursing service.

It was the third year in a row the board considered cutting back or eliminating the school nursing program. The current option was to not replace one nurse during a one-year leave-of-absence.

Sister Rose Ullman, St. Thomas More School principal, said she was speaking for all parochial schools when she pleaded for continuing the four-member staff. She said she believed the nursing program was necessary to continue an excellent health program in the school district and to help identify physical problems early in age to help avoid their causing learning disabilities and dropouts.

The four public school nurses serve both parochial and public schools in the district.

Mrs. Patricia Danford, a board member who a year ago urged a study of possibly replacing the service by contracting with the Visiting Nurses' Association, urged the continuation, saying a 2½ per cent cutback would hurt the program.

Kenneth Sager, board president, complained that the board was playing a cruel, psychological game by bringing up the subject the third year in a row.

Other board members disagreed, saying it was healthy to look at the situation. Sager, Danford, Paul Heid and John Livingston voted for maintaining the staff and Karl Becker voted against it.

Becker said he believed the board should make the taxpayer aware of the level of services the school was providing, one reason for the school tax level. He suggested the county might pick up the service.

In the same action, the board did vote to eliminate the position of instructional materials center head and the equivalent of two other teaching positions.

Francis Sumnicht, 325 W. Michigan St., spoke for a group of parents with the children with the special learning disabilities—a problem not of retardation, but of motor perception that may make reading, listening, writing and other study activities difficult. It can bring on frustration and emotional problems, Sumnicht and other parents told the board.

Sumnicht said there could have been 80 sets of parents at the meeting. He said the group wanted the board to realize the importance of the program and to consider increasing the special training opportunities at the elementary and secondary levels. There are

Bids on bridge below estimates

BY DOUG KOPLIEN
Post-Crescent staff writer

Bids on the first two phases of the Little Lake Butte des Morts bridge have come in at $622,407 under the cost projections issued nearly a year ago.

The state Highway Commission opened the bids in Madison today, and the apparent low bids for the construction of the 3,256 foot long span and 17 high-rise supporting concrete piers will total $4,077,593—compared to a $4.7 million estimate.

Apparent low bidders are:

—Lunda Construction Co., Black River Falls, $1,321,785 for the concrete piers.

—U. S. Steel Corp., Pittsburgh, Pa., $2,755,808, for the more than half-mile long span.

Although the construction bids are more than $600,000 under estimate, Winnebago County Highway Commissioner Robert Graf said today that another $408,000 would be needed to cover contingencies and construction engineering.

The county highway committee was scheduled to convene this afternoon to act quickly on a resolution asking for some $855,000 more to cover the construction cost. The resolution is scheduled to come before the county board at its meeting tonight.

The county finance committee, more than two years ago, had indicated that it would recommend adding $900,000 to the county's share of the construction costs. However, this never came to the county board because firm bids were asked so the resolution could be as close as possible to the actual construction costs.

The same philosophy was applied by the highway committee in June of 1972, when the state estimates upped the total construction cost by $1.5 million, a third of which would be paid by the state and the other two-thirds by Winnebago County.

The City of Manasha has committed $700,000 to the project. The Town of Manasha, were both bridge touch downs will be located, pledged $500,000, its statutory maximum. A municipality is restricted under the state long bridge act to pay not more than one half of one per cent of its equalized base.

The fund commitments from both the city and town were overwhelmingly endorsed by their citizens in separate referendums in 1970.

According to Clem Mertens, district chief design engineer in Green Bay, the construction should get started by early July. "Usually it takes from six weeks to two months to get a contract ready and signed by the governor," he said.

The bids opened today will cover substructure and span. There are still four more contracts to be bid to complete the entire $14 million project.

Grading and graveling the east approach from County Trunk P (Racine Street) to Tayco Street will be begin in July, while the structure over Tayco Street plus the concrete bridge deck will be bid in the spring of 1974.

The west side approach and interchange with U. S. 41 and the network of frontage roads are a part of the overall plan to close at-grade access points to bring U. S. 41 to freeway standards.

State and federal money will be used to finance the $6.8 million interchange on the west side and these projects are scheduled for bidding late this year.

Bid opening today culminates nearly a decade of design, planning and political rhetoric on building the span over Little Lake Butte des Morts, considered a key in the development of the Tri County Expressway, linking the north and south ends of the Fox River Valley.

The project drew a large number of contractors. According to Graf, there were some 15 bids opened on the pier and support structure, while 22 were filed for the structural steel. The keen competition, cited by Graf and forecast by Mertens, was reflected in the range of bids from the low total of $4,077,593, to a high of almost $5.7 million.

Town delays license for Horsefeather

TOWN OF MENASHA — The town board has delayed awarding a liquor license to the Horsefeather pending the outcome of two charges against the night club.

The delays came after the board learned that a charge of soliciting for prostitution, a felony, is pending in Winnebago County, while another, purchasing liquor from an unlicensed wholesaler, a misdemeanor, has been filed in Outagamie County.

The license, in Mrs. Lorraine Eddy's name, was held up until the board's last meeting in June, in the hopes that both litigations would have been settled by that time.

However, in the event the legal process takes longer than that, the license probably would be issued, although the decision will be up to the board.

Both Town Chairman George Strohmeyer and Supv. Frederick Miller pointed out that the assumption should be innocence until guilt was proven.

Lee Jensen, town attorney, told the board that it was "proper to withhold the license."

If conviction comes on the felony count, the town would be prohibited from awarding the license, according to Clerk Robert Jacobs. "I cannot issue a license to a felon," he said.

The club came under attack at the annual town meeting where residents overwhelmingly directed the town board to adopt legislation controlling night club entertainment and the manner of dress for entertainers.

Truth tingles hair on her neck

Dr. Bergen Evans, humorist, author, and lecturer in the department of English at Northwestern University, confided in one of his speeches that he held an inherent belief that God would never strike him down in a plane if he were riding in first class.

It comforted me enormously to hear him say that because I hold a lot of irrational, unexplained theories that I know to be true because I feel them on the hair on my neck.

I know that all size 8s are childless and that if they ultimately were to give birth, they too would be unable to get out of deep chairs and wear bikinis without a coat.

Also that Paul Newman never bleeds when he shaves, Jackie Onassis never has bad breath, and Miss America never sweats.

It is written somewhere that the minute I take down my ironing board, my heart will stop beating and my life will be over.

That women with long fingernails never make meat loaf and have husbands who make over $50,000 a year.

That my dog is laughing (so highly pitched that only other dogs can hear him) when he sees me come out of the shower.

That I personally could put an end to droughts by washing my picture window on the outside.

Maybe you have no hard-core statement of facts to back up the crawling feeling of the hairs on your neck, but anyone would be a fool to tempt fate and take a chance.

Who among you would face the back of an elevator just to be cute? Who would rip the tags off of pillows and chairs when you know in your heart it would place you in mortal sin?

Who would dare ignore an airline hostess when she is telling you about your supply of oxygen and points of exit?

Frankly, have you the guts to tell an appliance what you really think of it, or somewhere in the small of your mind is there a nagging that they are little people from another planet who are just waiting to "take over."

It is obvious (and has been from the beginning) that coat hangers are bisexual and will not control their reproduction cycles until we are all dispossessed from our homes by them.

And I also know as well as I am sitting here that a mother who goes on a field trip to the stockyards with 43 second graders will have a divine death without pain.

I have to believe that.

Calumet to consider 2 resolutions

CHILTON — The Calumet County Board will meet at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, May 22, at the courthouse for its first night meeting of the summer.

Included on the advanced agenda are resolutions concerning support of Assembly Bill 324 which pertains to nursing home regulations opposition to the flooding of the Brillion Marsh in the Potter area.

A resolution authorizing the purchase of mobile radios for the highway department is expected to be introduced. Members of the public grounds and highway committee have been meeting several times throughout the year in an effort to get the radio equipment in the highway department vehicles. State law requires that all county highway departments must have radios in mobile equipment that performs work on state highways.

An appointment to fill the vacant post of the late Leroy Kleist from District 8 will be made by board chairman G. J. Hipke, subject to the full board approval.

William Hertel, currently serving as president of the Calumet County Bar Association, will be named a member of the county highway safety commission, replacing attorney William D. Engler, who has resigned.

Other business will include the presentation of a claim for damages by Loretta and Lawrence Schmidt regarding an automobile accident in which they were involved.

in early 1971 limited its share to one third of the construction costs. Winnebago County, because the town is limited by statute from paying more toward the construction, is expected to pick up the difference.

County Executive Orrin King today confirmed that he planned to support use of federal revenue sharing money to offset the county's share. The revenue sharing funds have been placed in a special account and informally earmarked for the bridge.

"We all know that the bridge at Menasha is badly needed and the county can well afford to put in the excess money," King commented today.

In addition to the $1.2 million committed by the city and town, the county has $1.8 million waiting in the bank from a bond issue sold nearly three years ago. There's also $1.1 million in Tri-County Expressway right-of-way acquisition money, part of which has been used for the bridge's east side approach.

committee for failing to respond to the problem.

"I'm sorry it upset you," Babbitt said of the letter delivery method.

He said he was leaving for Madison May 11 and he wanted to make sure social services board members received the letters in time to determine if they could be at the May 16 meeting with the personnel panel.

"We've got to know where you people stand," Babbitt said in reference to the grievance.

Kellogg, in a rare display of anger, banged his fist on the meeting table and replied, "We've been notifying you we have a personnel problem. We can't get anything back from your committee." He produced papers detailing, in chronological order, the contacts made with Babbitt's committee on the problem.

Supv. Eugene Higgins of Appleton, social services board chairman, invited Babbitt to Monday's meeting. The board voted unanimously to meet with Babbitt's committee Wednesday.

Rehfeldt . . .

"That's what I'm saying, don't get quibbly," the board chairman replied.

A transcript from the taped proceedings of the board was brought in and Rehfeldt's motion on the board floor, which had lost, read, "I move that we continue the study and Mr. Kloes become a member of that committee until its finalization."

Rehfeldt said, "Are you sure that's right? That's not what I meant."

waiting lists for existing programs.

Mrs. Karen Knoke, 1615 N. Hines St., said the Grand Chute parents wanted improvements at Badger, Twin Willows and Woodlawn schools to help equalize educational facilities. She said the town's taxpayers and the children were being short-changed.

District Admin. Orlyn Zieman noted the defeated Ferber Elementary School project had been intended as a partial answer to the problem. Heid said other schools besides those three were not up to a par with the rest of the district's schools.

Sager said the board was well aware of the outlying schools situation and would consider it in the upcoming five-year capital improvements program updating.

In other action, the board was urged to shift to a high school textbook rental system from the present student purchase system, effective next September. Dr. Kenneth Johnston, director of administrative services, said his office believed the change was financially feasible.

He urged the board to delay action for one meeting to allow time for any public comment.

The board also held over a proposal to shift one or more school buildings from a school custodian staff to a contracted service.

Johnston said the reason for such a move would be financial savings. He estimated that installing the contracted service in one elementary and one junior high would reduce custodial costs by $20,000 in one year.

Jerome Boettcher, director of operations, said tentative April enrollment projections for next fall showed a drop of 60 students to 14,150. He estimated elementary enrollment would drop 205 and secondary would rise 145.

The board approved revised graduation requirements to generalize slightly the requirements, including changing American history to American studies, and English to communicative arts, which includes drama, speech and other classes. The certificate of attendance will be dropped, and physical education will be maintained, as will the requirement for a natural science, preferably biology.

The board also approved endorsing a legislative bill calling for newly elected board members to take office on the fourth Monday in April instead of July, and asking the administration to study exchanging pupils with the parochial schools, but not on a shared-time basis

Residents opposed to proposed asphalt plant

An application for a special use permit for an asphalt batch plant and quarry operation in the Town of Center met with opposition from about 30 area residents this morning at a public hearing conducted by the Outagamie County Board's zoning committee.

The zoning committee decided to study the request further after a question arose whether the special use permit would be adequate or if a rezoning would be needed.

The application was from Appleton Asphalt Inc., for a site east of County Trunk A and south of Quarry Road. Russell Obermeir, vice president of the firm, told the committee they wanted to locate their office and asphalt batch plant on the site and eventually quarry the site.

Coordinator of Public Services Frank Charlesworth said that quarry operations are permitted under a special use permit in an agriculture zone and that the asphalt plant could be included if incidental to the quarrying.

However, he said, if the asphalt plant was the main operation and quarrying incidental to that, rezoning to an industrial use would be required.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, committee chairman, suggested that a ruling be obtained from Corporation Counsel William Schuh.

Obermeir said it was a case of either finding a place to go or going out of business. "The price of stone keeps going up," he said. He noted there were two quarry operations on the north side of Quarry Road that have been there for many years.

John Hennessey, a county supervisor and a member of the Town of Center board, said the town board opposes the permit at this time. He said the matter did not come before the town board until Monday night and that no written plan for use of the area has been submitted.

He asked that the zoning committee not act until a proposed land use plan is done for the entire Town of Center.

A number of property owners in the area objected on the grounds that blasting from a quarry could damage their homes and wells, as well as reduce property values.

The zoning committee also referred the request to the highway committee to study the effects of additional truck travel on County Trunk A and Quarry Road.

5 members of family are slain

REYNOLDSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Five members of a farm family were found slain in a house trailer near this south Georgia community early today.

Authorities said it appeared they had been shot. The wife of one of the victims was missing and authorities said they believed she was being held hostage.

Police broadcast an alert throughout Georgia and neighboring states for a car owned by one of the victims.

Police said they were baffled by the killings of the members of the Alday family — the father, three sons and a brother of the father.

The bodies were found by a relative about 1:30 a.m. in one of two house trailers on the farm of Ned Alday.

The victims were identified as Ned Alday, 62, the father; Jerry Alday, about 30, in whose trailer the bodies were found; Chester Alday, 29; Jimmy Alday, 26; and Aubry Alday, 58, a brother of Ned.

Police were searching for Mary Alday, the wife of Jerry, who they said apparently was taken hostage. Jerry's car was also missing.

A relative said Jerry and Chester, both of whom were married, lived in separate trailers on the Alday farm.

Other members of the family lived in the main house.

Reynoldsville is a small community about 12 miles south of Bainbridge in southwest Georgia.

Gray reported FBI found no link between White House, wiretappers

WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III told Senate investigators the FBI never found any link connecting the White House with the Watergate wiretapping, an official digest of Gray's remarks shows.

Gray was further quoted as saying John W. Dean III assured him that he was relaying FBI reports directly and regularly to President Nixon.

Gray's remarks indicate he was unaware of the top-level coverup of the affair, or of reported attempts to enlist the CIA in the effort.

Gray quit as acting director of the FBI April 27, and Dean was fired three days later from his post as presidential counsel.

The digest of Gray's remarks flatly contradicts some earlier news accounts. Intended for private use by the Senate's special Watergate investigating committee, it was made available to The Associated Press by a Senate source.

Gray was interviewed by the Senate committee's staff last Thursday, and conflicting news accounts—based on various sources—began to surface late the following day.

Some quoted Gray as saying he had told Nixon of high-level White House involvement in the case, while another said Gray had reported that John D. Ehrlichman tried to impede the FBI's investigation and that Gray had reported this to Nixon.

But the digest of Gray's remarks shows he was aware only of "confusion" that he didn't consider normal for such an investigation, and that he told Nixon he thought this resulted from "either carelessness or indifference" by White House aides.

Thus, according to the Senate's official version, Gray didn't tell the President anything that necessarily would have made Nixon aware of a coverup by his own aides. Nixon said April 30 that he was repeatedly assured by those conducting investigations into Watergate that nobody in his administration was implicated.

The three-page digest summarizes and paraphrases Gray's remarks, giving few direct quotes. It gives this account:

Gray said he started investigating the Watergate burglary June 21, after returning from a trip to California. "His first call from Ehrlichman came at 9:35 on the 21st advising him to be careful about leaks," the document said.

Ehrlichman called again June 28 ordering Gray to cancel a meeting Gray had set up with Central Intelligence Agency officials to straighten out confusion over whether the CIA was interested in two witnesses the FBI sought to interview.

Gray said he and Ehrlichman argued about which of them was running the FBI's investigation. "Ehrlichman conceded that Gray was running it but the meeting was canceled anyway," the Senate paper said.

Later that day, June 28, Gray said he met with Ehrlichman and Dean and that Dean handed him documents from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt, later convicted in the wiretapping.

Gray confirmed earlier reports that he destroyed these documents—reportedly forged State Department cables—on what he took to be orders from Ehrlichman and Dean.

Contrary to earlier reports, Gray said he held onto the documents for months before destroying them after last Christmas. Dean inquired twice about whether the destruction had been carried out, Gray said.

More than a week dragged by after the June 28 meeting with no resolution

High court asked to strengthen pursuit of legislative corruption

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has asked the Supreme Court to strengthen the hand of prosecutors pursuing "congressional corruption."

The department asked the court Monday to recognize the political and practical difficulties in prosecution of congressional misconduct and to reduce the shield that legislative activity affords against prosecution.

To do so would follow the words of Congress itself, the government maintained in asking for review of a lower court's reversal of convictions won against former Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex.

Dowdy, a 20-year veteran of the House who did not seek reelection last November, was convicted last year on eight counts stemming from a $25,000 bribe he allegedly accepted to protect members of now-defunct home-improvement firm from prosecution in the District of Columbia.

The U.S. Circuit Court at Richmond tossed out five of the eight counts, reducing Dowdy's penalty from 18 months in jail and a $25,000 fine to six months in jail and a $2,000 fine.

The circuit court said the government had delved into Dowdy's actions as a legislator, actions that are closed to judicial scrutiny by the Constitution's protection of "speech and debate" by lawmakers.

"If allowed to stand, the ruling would make it exceedingly difficult as a practical matter, successfully to prosecute congressional corruption," the government petition read.

Congress was aware of its own power to root out misconduct, but nevertheless wrote laws against official bribery, the government said.

"Given the inherent practical and political difficulties of actually trying a member of Congress before the House or Senate, we submit it is entirely reasonable and proper for Congress...to delegate its authority to punish its members by enacting statutes specifically providing for trial in the courts of congressmen who accept bribes or commit other unlawful acts," the government said.

"Moreover, the circuit court simply cast too wide a definition of protected legislative activity," the Justice Department argued.

"In effect, the court's holding permits members of Congress to shield their misconduct from criminal prosecution merely by asserting that acts relating to the misconduct had a legislative purpose or were done in anticipation of possible congressional hearing or investigation," the government maintained.

Halt to bombing funds getting consideration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee today considers a measure that would halt funds for U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

The funding ban was approved Monday by the Appropriations Defense subcommittee.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a similar ban.

The Senate panels followed the lead of the House, which voted a fund cutoff for Cambodian bombing last week.

The Senate committees, however, voted to extend the ban to other areas of Indochina.

The Foreign Relations Committee voted to bar the use of funds for hostilities in Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam, or for U.S. aid to North Vietnam, without specific approval from Congress.

The ban was introduced by Sens. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, who said it was an attempt to regain for Congress its constitutional authority to declare war.

The measure, an amendment to a $570 million State Department Authorization bill, had 40 Senate co-sponsors.

The Appropriations subcommittee extended the ban to include Laos as well as Cambodia.

The action came on a request from the Defense Department for authority to transfer up to $500 million between accounts to make up for specific deficits, including $25 million for air operations in Cambodia until June 30.

The House rejected the transfer authority after arguments that approval could be interpreted as congressional sanction of the bombing.

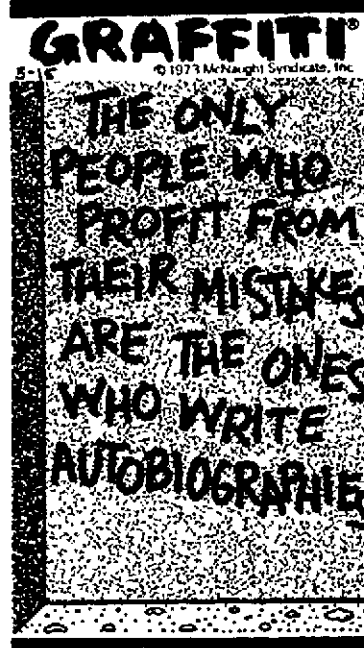

The Senate subcommittee approved transfers up to $170 million to make up for devaluation of the dollar and increases in living costs—under the condition that nothing be spent on bombing.

Action by the full Senate may come Thursday or Friday, said Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Appropriations Committee and its defense subcommittee, endorsed the action, saying the bombing campaign risks further involvement in Indochina and the capture of American prisoners.

Calling the bombing raids unconstitutional, Church said the amendment is designed "to insure that the Congress specifically concurs before American military forces may be reinvolved in the continuing hostilities in Indochina."

Drug 'council' revealed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported today that it has learned a 10-man "council" controls an estimated $18-million-a-year heroin business here.

Authorities have been investigating the council for several months, the Globe said.

The newspaper said the council meets regularly in a north St. Louis tavern to set prices, settle territorial disputes, control the supply of heroin and, in some cases, vote on death penalties for persons suspected of violating council rules.

The Globe said authorities told it that independents were permitted to sell drugs in the city as long as they did not grow too large and refuse to submit to the council's wishes.

The council comprises several territories and has a chairman and an "enforcer," the newspaper said. The chairman reportedly supervises large shipments of heroin into the area and acts as liaison with law officials. The enforcer executed suspected violators of council rules and picked up contracts from council members, the Globe said.

Froehlich named to reform panel

WASHINGTON—The House Republican Research Committee has formed a task force on election reform, with Rep. Harold V. Froehlich of Appleton as one of the 15 members. Rep. Barber B. Conable, Jr., N.Y., chairman of the research committee, announced the formation of the task force Sunday. Rep. William Frenzel, Minn., is chairman. Frenzel said, "Republican members of Congress are dismayed by the Watergate revelations of illegal campaign practices. The task force will focus on seeking ways to tighten and revise federal campaign laws to discourage abuse by ensuring swift and impartial enforcement procedures." The task force also will examine voter registration legislation, election fraud, electoral college reform, selection procedures for vice presidential candidates and presidential primaries. Under the election reform heading, the group will study federal laws on campaign contributions and spending, reporting procedures and enforcement. The results will be reported to the House Republican Conference.

Ann Landers

Mom's only five years older

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 24 years old. He began seeing a divorced woman who is 37, and looks every day of it. I was sure the affair would blow over and said nothing to indicate my disapproval. A few weeks ago they announced their engagement, which was a shock to both my husband and me. This woman is only five years younger than I am, Ann. Need I tell you how I felt when she started to call me "Mother" the day after the engagement was announced?

Last night she called me "Mother" four times during dinner. It ruined my appetite and I got the hiccups during the meal which added to my embarrassment. My husband seemed to think it was funny. I could have killed him.

What should I do about it? Obviously she is doing this to make me feel older and to remind me that soon she will be a member of the family—whether I like it or not. I'd appreciate your advice.—Excedrin Headache

Dear Ex: Get down to basics. The next time she calls you "Mother," ask her to call you by your first name. The doll is going to be around awhile and there's no sense in going through life with hiccups and indigestion.

Dear Ann Landers: I could never ask my mother this question—she'd kill me. But I do need an answer. Please help me. When I was 15 I made a very big mistake. I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant. I am 18 now and going with a wonderful guy who respects me very much. We are talking about getting engaged when I graduate from high school in a few months and I need to know something. Can a fellow tell if a girl is a virgin? I don't want to go into my past history. Will he know?—No, I.D. Please

Dear N.: In most instances there is no definite, irrefutable, physical evidence of virginity. If he's as wonderful as you say, he won't ask questions.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to "Yes, This Means You." The poor woman sounds so sure of her husband I hate to take the wind out of her sails.

I feel terribly sorry for her, or for any wife who is 100 per cent certain her husband will never stray because she's a hot number and their sex life is great. Of course, she may be right, if she's lucky enough to have a mature spouse. But usually the men are not so mature. It's a shock for a middle-aged woman to discover that the old boy is stashing girlie magazines and stag movies and bringing home novelty-store tricks to rev up his sex life. After the shock wears off, she figures that if thousands of people are getting their jollies out of these things that maybe they are normal and she's nuts.

Finally she goes to a psychiatrist (where her husband really ought to be) and learns that she's O.K. but he is stuck back there at the 12-to-14-year old level. She then has two choices. She can either dump him, or she can be a loving and patient wife and hope her feelings stay alive while he works through his sexual adolescence. She then admits to herself that nobody changes anybody. Everybody has to change himself. And that is the beginning of wisdom.—I'm Talking About Us, Dear

Dear Talking: Truer words were never spoken. I hope the thousands of women who have this problem will clip today's column and read it when the old boy regresses. It might give them hope.

Professional care, diet are important during pregnancy

If you're a mother-to-be, chances are the day you're looking forward to most is the day your baby will arrive.

Sure, you still have a lot of things to do. There's that extra bedroom to paint and a crib to buy. And, even though you've been postponing it, you're going to have to break the news to your mother-in-law someday that, if it's a girl, you're not going to name her Matilda. Nevertheless, you're impatient for the big day.

Nine months can seem like a long time but they can be crucial to your baby's well-being.

If you suspect you're pregnant, you are advised to seek professional care early. If you do not have a family doctor, and if cost is a consideration, your local health department or community hospital should be able to refer you to a clinic where you can receive help. Many clinics, it's true, are crowded but even long waits to see a professional staff member are worth it. Prematurity, toxemia and other complications—most of which are preventable with care—are most common among women who have had no prenatal care.

Your doctor will want you to come for regular visits—probably once a month for the first six months, then more frequently. Don't be embarrassed to ask him any questions you might have, even if you're sure they're "silly." Tell him about problems such as morning sickness, constipation and varicose veins. And don't hesitate to let him know of any worries you may have concerning the adjustments you and your husband are faced with now that the baby is on the way.

One thing your doctor will probably mention is diet. It's true that you're now eating for two, and recent nutritional studies strongly indicate that your baby's well-being depends a lot on how wisely you choose the foods you eat during this critical period. While weight gains are no longer limited for most women, the important thing is not to eat more but to eat well. Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. stresses the importance of a diet rich in protein—plenty of milk, chicken, fish, meat and eggs. Vegetables, fruits and enriched and whole grain cereals and bread are necessary.

And, if you should have a sudden urge for pickles and ice cream, don't be alarmed. Some doctors believe that yearnings for special foods satisfy an emotional need during a stress period and, if your doctor is satisfied with your weight, enjoy them.

Normal light housework, says the insurance company, is fine. In fact, the bending that you do when you work around the house helps to strengthen muscles that are especially important when you are having a baby. But it cautions against lifting heavy things, moving furniture, climbing on ladders or chairs and getting overtired. Let your husband help you. Being able to express his concern in a real way will probably make him feel good.

Stressed, is the importance of abstaining from drugs of any kind, including such drugs as aspirin, unless your doctor approves of your taking them.

As your pregnancy progresses, you may find yourself wondering more about such questions as whether or not to attend "natural" childbirth classes and whether to breast-feed or bottle-feed your baby. The answers to these questions will depend on you and your doctor. Discuss them freely with him—then trust your mutual decision.

It won't be long before your baby will be here—a little more wrinkled than you may have imagined—but still the prettiest baby you have ever seen. And he or she will be all yours.

Xavier gains state berth

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent staff writer

Appleton Xavier didn't waste any hits Monday as it battled its way from behind to edge Menasha St. Mary 6-4 and earn a berth in the WISAA state baseball tournament this weekend in Racine.

The Hawks, now 7-0, are slated to meet two-time defending WISAA state champion Racine St. Catherine in the 8:30 p.m. Friday contest.

St. Mary plays host to the Hawks this afternoon, however, the contest has little meaning to either team as WISAA officials had placed total significance upon Monday's confrontation.

A combination of things led to the Zephyrs' undoing. Pitching ace Dave Michalkiewicz was unusually wild and his seven walks added up to hits and runs.

Xavier's Gus Laemmrich said, "We just caught up to a good pitcher. His walks put men on base and forced in some runs and then when he got behind on some of our better hitters he had to lay the ball in there and we got our hits...hitting has been one of our strengths this season."

St. Mary held a 4-2 advantage going into the bottom of the sixth inning. Mike Ertl reached safely on an error by Bob Noll and Tom Rechner managed a walk. Dick Boya, attempting to sacrifice, bunted the ball between first and the pitcher and beat the play for an infield hit.

Jerry Johnson singled into center to score a run and Dave Mauthe singled to right field to plate two more runs. Winning pitcher Tim Sullivan sent a deep fly to left which scored the final run.

Sullivan, who relieved starter Tom Floodstrand at the start of the fifth inning, shut the door after walking leadoff Greg Koszalinski to open the seventh as he struck out Al Jensen, Dave Hermus and pinchhitter Jeff Heimerman.

St. Mary pounded the ball consistently collecting 10 hits but left 11 runners stranded. Floodstrand and Sullivan had more trouble with the bottom of the Zephyr order than the hot-hitting top part. Koszalinski, batting sixth, had two hits and Al Jensen, hitting seventh, three.

Rozelle reportedly never asked for drug probe

SAN DIEGO (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle has been quoted as saying 18 months ago that he had never asked for an investigation of drug abuse in the NFL and doubted that he had the authority to procure records or impose discipline.

Rozelle is quoted in sworn testimony he gave in December 1971 in a lawsuit against the NFL and the San Diego Chargers by former Charger tackle Houston Ridge.

Ridge, who contended the Chargers improperly administered drugs that helped cause the hip injury that ended his career, received $295,000 recently in an out-of-court settlement.

Rozelle's testimony appeared in today's San Diego Union in a column by Sports Editor Jack Murphy.

In testimony reported earlier, several players said use of powerful stimulants and other drugs was widespread on the Chargers and at least several other clubs as recently as 1969.

In his testimony, Rozelle gave a series of reasons for not ordering an investigation into player drug use:

—Giving examinations to players would "possibly constitute an invasion of privacy" and might hamper the relationship between players and the team doctor.

—"The problem of enforcing rules for 26 different clubs spread all over the U.S., in this very unique area, we found to be impractical."

—"You have varying medical opinions today and in the past on the use of various drugs."

—Auditing club drug records "would be a tremendous burden."

"I question where I would have the definitive power in the (NFL) constitution to enforce the submission to me of any such records," Rozelle added.

Asked by Ridge's attorney what he would do if forced to take disciplinary action in a drug matter, Rozelle said he would advise club owners "to consult with their team physician... and urge that he exercise strong controls and proper medical judgment in any medications that were dispensed by the team."

The only action he had taken as of December 1971, the commissioner said, was to distribute a poster to each team to be placed in locker rooms "outlining the league and the individual club's position relative to drugs."

Tragedy has changed Ron Santo

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Santo always has been an emotional individual and it took a tragedy to teach him baseball isn't everything. As a result, Santo is off to the finest start of his 14-year career with the Chicago Cubs.

Santo reluctantly admits the tragic auto accident last March in which he lost his parents is responsible for his finding himself leading the National League with a .369 average Monday.

"I dedicated the season and my life to them," said Santo. "There's no kidding myself. I've had my problems. I know we should have won the pennant somewhere along the line the last few seasons."

"I remember last Thanksgiving when I sat down and told Mom that I was going to quit in a couple of years," said the 33-year-old star third baseman. "I saw from the look in her eyes that she didn't understand because her whole life was my baseball career."

"When they passed away, I realized baseball was not everything. Yet, I dedicated the season to them. I think of nothing else but baseball and it has given me new life. Now I go up there with confidence and determination."

"I don't care what the fans say or if they boo," continued Santo. "Those things are no longer important. I find there no longer are any pressures on me."

Although Santo hates "to admit it" he seldom has had good starts with the possible exception of 1964 when he batted a career high .315 with 30 home runs and 114 runs batted in "and 13 triples," he adds.

"Nobody believes me but I think I tied for the league lead in triples with Richie Allen that year. I guess I had some speed then," said Santo, who doesn't exactly put fear in the enemy with his base running.

"No, I've never led the league in hitting, not even for a day," said Santo. "I doubt if I can ever lead the league in hitting. I've always felt you have to have a lot of speed to do that."

Santo has shunned predicting any pennants since his heel-clicking days of 1969 when the Cubs blew a 9½ game lead late in the season as the New York Mets came on to win everything.

"We've got a very good club and this is the strongest pitching we've had since I've been here," said Santo.

Strohmeyer, Kampo feud erupts in public

BY DOUG KOPLIEN

TOWN OF MENASHA — The political pot which has been brewing here since the April 3 election boiled over Monday night as Chairman George Strohmeyer and the man he beat, Roland Kampo, had their first public face-to-face confrontation.

And the fiery verbal exchange at the town board meeting nearly came to fisticuffs.

It started as Strohmeyer explained that he had received several calls wondering "Why Mr. Kampo was hired as the town's lobbyist?"

Supv. Frederick Miller said he contacted Kampo after Clerk Robert Jacobs told him that he (Strohmeyer) had said he didn't plan to be a lobbyist.

Strohmeyer then turned the meeting over to Atty. David Krizesky (who had been co-chairman of Strohmeyer's campaign) who cross-examined Miller on the selection process in an attempt to show "that the hiring was done in a most haphazard and irresponsible fashion."

Kampo, on hand to report on his first stint as town lobbyist, challenged Krizesky. "You don't understand the lobbying process. You don't go in and tell the news media about the votes you have for or against the bill — that's the same as telling the other side what and how you're doing."

Krizesky countered, "Your town board could never be accused of conducting business in front of the news media. It wasn't the habit to conduct business in public," the attorney said, adding that Kampo was "the most vociferous, ineffectual lobbyist in Madison."

It was at that point that the meeting exploded with Kampo continuing to challenge Krizesky and Strohmeyer gaveling Kampo out of order and telling him (Kampo) to sit down.

The new chairman, hammering Kampo out of order, said "You never got the confidence of anyone in Madison. You think you're a great lobbyist and you truly aren't," he said continuing to tell Kampo to "sit down or I'll have you thrown out."

Kampo fired back "You aren't big enough. I'll sit down, but if you're going to run a meeting, run it right."

Strohmeyer then summoned Police Chief Robert Weyenberg with the direction to "throw him (Kampo) out."

The standing-room-only crowd then got into the act with booing and hissing and demanding that the meeting be controlled. Kampo stayed.

After it quieted down, Strohmeyer complained that Miller "didn't have the respect to call any of the other town board members before suggesting hiring Kampo as a lobbyist."

Miller retorted, "Well, I didn't want to be accused of doing anything in secret."

Miller continued that he had talked to Kampo after learning that Strohmeyer did not plan to lobby. It was at that time that the $4,000 plus expense figure was agreed on.

"Mr. Chairman, you asked 'Will Kampo cooperate'. He called you to ask you to go to Madison. An effort was made to cooperate but evidently cooperation is not going to happen."

Strohmeyer shot back, "When he (Kampo) had the chance to come in and help with an orderly transition of changeover, he didn't show up. But, put $4,000 in his pocket and he's his same old happy self. Sieg Heil."

The crowd then demanded that Strohmeyer retract the "Sieg Heil" reference and the chairman said, "I'm sorry, that should not have been used."

Then as the meeting again quieted down, Kampo gave a report on bills pending before the legislature including the boundary review bill, the county assessing bill and island annexation bill — all of which are being opposed by the town.

Later on, as barbs and innuendos were exchanged between the Strohmeyer and Kampo forces in the audience, Ronald Basken, 1717 Clayton Road, pleaded, "We could draw lines in this room and find that supporters are here for both men, but we're all from the same town."

"All of us have made statements which we've been sorry for, but this decision is already made. Anyone of us can go to Madison and there's no use in further discussion."

"These sharp barbs are doing no good for the Town of Menasha," Basken said, adding that "it's starting to sound like another town close to us. Let tonight be the end of all the sharp barbs — it sounds like kids playing," he said, adding quickly "And, I'm not running for office."

Police & fire beat

KAUKAUNA — A representative of Gustman Chevrolet Sales, Lawe Street, reported to police that two wheels including wheel covers and tires were stolen from a 1973 auto parked in a lot adjacent to the sales building. The front of the car was jacked up and a concrete block used to prop up the car.

Although there were a few exchanges for the rest of the meeting, it progressed on an even keel until the end when the board was going through the usual routine business of approving the bills.

When Stanley Helmski's bill for road maintenance came up, Strohmeyer refused to sign the bill, arguing that "IT'S ILLEGAL," IMPLYING THAT THE CONTRACT SHOULD BE PLACED OUT ON BIDS.

Today, Strohmeyer said he had talked with an Oshkosh attorney who had said that it was illegal to pay the one firm $170,000 in a single year without bidding the work.

So, Strohmeyer refused to sign the authorization for payment and left the meeting.

The session was never adjourned.

Committee recommends sidewalks on Pershing

A North Side alderman won City Council committee support Monday for his request to have sidewalk installed along the north side of Pershing Street in a six-block stretch, over objections from several of his constituents who will pay the bill.

The property owners and an attorney appeared before the streets and sanitation committee in opposition to the request by Ald. Roylance Pointer (14th). His proposal already has been approved once by the council, which has ordered the walks installed.

The residents argued that the new walks would create a safety hazard by encouraging pedestrians to cross several side-streets that intersect Pershing. The streets do not go through south of Pershing, where there is now sidewalk.

Representatives of Huntley School PTA presented petitions bearing signatures of 124 residents of surrounding streets who asked for the walks on grounds they would enhance safety of pupils walking to Huntley. The opposition also presented petitions of its own against the project.

The opponents asked why they should install walks when other streets don't have walks. They would not object if there was a citywide policy requiring walks in all neighborhoods, they said. One speaker suggested a citywide referendum to determine citizen opinions about sidewalks.

The opponents also said the sidewalks would detract from the appearances of their front yards.

One death, 46 injuries on county roads in April

One person was killed and 46 others injured in traffic accidents on Outagamie County roads in April, according to figures released by Lt. Robert T. Keating of the sheriff's department.

A total of 180 vehicles were damaged in 120 accidents. None of the injuries nor the single death involved bicyclists or pedestrians. The accident figure was up from 108 in March and 92 in April, 1972.

Patrolmen arrested 107 persons, down from 147 in March and 137 the previous April. Of the 107 arrests, 57 were for speeding, while 10 each were for driver's license and red light-stop sign violations.

Speeding was listed as the cause of 24 accidents, while 17 were attributed to inattentive driving, 16 to animals and 11 to failure to yield right-of-way.

A total of 383 warnings were issued, from the 396 in March and 385 during April, 1972.

Towel tubes needed for shelf marker

BY CAPPY DICK

The shelf markers described as today's fun project for boys and girls to tackle are handy gadgets for your storage closet. They are

Cling to shelves easily made from empty paper towel tubes. When completed, the marker is attached to a shelf as shown in Figure 2. It identifies the contents of the packages that adjoin it on the shelf.

The first step in making a marker is to cut a slot in a towel core as shown in Figure 1. With a fiber-tipped marking pen, print the word or words that will identify certain packages. Fit the tube over the edge of the shelf, as in Figures 2, 3 and 4. If the tube is to be used on a shelf at the very top of the closet, print lower on the towel core than you would if applying the marker to a shelf nearer to your eye-level.

With this marking system you will always know what is in containers far back on any shelf.

You can change the printing on a marker by covering the original wording with plain paper to be printed with new words.

Mothers, fathers, grandparents! If you are planning a party for the children and need new ideas to entertain them, you'll find 45 good ones in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. # Jabbar edges Cowens in All-Star voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Nate Archibald, Kansas City-Omaha's relatively small guard, was the biggest vote collector on the National Basketball Association 1972-73 All-Star squad announced Monday, while Boston's Dave Cowens, the league's Most Valuable Player, failed to make the team.

The 6-foot-1 Archibald, the NBA leader in scoring with 2,719 points for a 34.0 average in 80 games, in assists with 910 for an 11.4 average and in minutes played with 3,681, received 15,836 points from a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters in the league's 17 cities. Each city received a full vote, meaning 17,000 would be the maximum.

Joining Archibald on the first team were forwards John Havlicek of Boston and Spencer Haywood of Seattle, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee, and guard Jerry West of Los Angeles.

The closest voting was for center, where Abdul-Jabbar edged Cowens, 10,822 to 10,356. The 7-2 Abdul-Jabbar, named to the first team for the third straight season, finished second in scoring, third in field goal percentage

Newcombe passes 1st test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Defending champion John Newcombe took today off from singles competition in the $150,000 Alan King-Cesars Palace Tennis Classic after an opening day victory. Meanwhile, the top three seeds had their first matches in singles play.

The fourth seeded Newcombe is not playing full time on the pro circuit this year, concentrating instead on competing for Australia on the Davis Cup series.

But he needed little time to put away France's Georges Goven 6-2, 6-2 in the opening match Monday.

No. 1 seed Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif. opens play in both singles and doubles, where he's also seeded first with teammate Bob Lutz of Sausalito, Calif.

home in California.

Lee, a 6-foot-2 punter and quarterback, described the trade as "a great opportunity—a chance to be a starting quarterback in the NFL. That's what every quarterback wants."

Lee said he played out his option after Fran Tarkenton returned to Minnesota from the New York Giants last year. Lee was used sparingly in 1972.

Warwick, a Vikings regular since 1965 until he suffered a knee injury last year and sat out half the season, said he played out his option because he could not agree on a contract with the team. "I think my knees are 100 per cent. I work on them quite a bit, using exercises a surgeon set up for me," Warwick said.

A spokesman for the NFL at its league headquarters in New York said the transaction leaves nine free agents in the league, down from the 13 who officially became free agents on May 1. The spokesman refused to name any of them.

Berry was signed by the Vikings in 1965 after setting alltime University of Oregon passing records with 271 completions and 37 touchdowns. He started only one league game while Norm Van Brocklin was the Vikings' coach and never started at all during Bud Grant's first season. He was sold to Atlanta prior to the 1968 season.

Last year, Berry ranked fourth among all NFL quarterbacks with a 55.6 per cent pass completion record, hitting 154 for 2,158 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Grant said of the acquisition: "Berry's record speaks for itself." Van Brocklin, the Atlanta coach, said: "We felt we had to make a change at quarterback." Referring to Lee, he added: "He beat us twice in the mud down here and the snow up there." He said Lee would try out as a punter as well as a quarterback.

Lee attempted only six passes last season and completed three for 75 yards. During his career with the Vikings, he completed 95 of 186 for 1,362 yards, nine touchdowns—and nine interceptions.

Rutherford thinks speed's too high

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There apparently won't be any 200-mile-per-hour laps at Indianapolis Motor Speedway this May. And Johnny Rutherford, a cool-headed Texan who bears the scars of battle, could care less.

The 35-year-old veteran driver from Ft. Worth, Tex., victim of a trail of broken engines and parts at Indianapolis over the years, captured the front row pole position for the May 28 500-mile race in first-round qualifying Saturday.

He did it by pushing his Team McLaren car around the 2½-mile oval at a four-lap speed of 198.413 m.p.h. to top Bobby Unser's old 10-mile standard by almost three miles per hour. His last lap of 199.071 m.p.h. missed the 200 mark by 21 one-hundredths of a second.

A few minutes later, Rutherford was telling newsmen: "It wouldn't hurt my feelings a bit if they slowed these cars down 20 miles an hour, or even more. We're going too fast for close competition."

The first weekend of qualifying for the world's richest auto race—the 1972 payoff exceeded $1 million for the second straight year—saw 30 drivers make the lineup, leaving only three spots to be filled in final runs next Saturday and Sunday.

The 30 qualifiers averaged a sizzling 192.572 m.p.h.—almost nine miles per hour faster than last year—and forecast a minimum speed of almost 190 even to make the field.

The weekend thus was a mixture of blazing speed, so high that even Rutherford was somewhat troubled, and tragedy.

Art Pollard, a 17-year veteran and one of the best liked drivers in racing, was killed in a searing, grinding crash of his Cobre-Eagle during a warmup session that preceded Saturday's initial qualifying runs.

Claims otter population is on increase

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The otter population in Wisconsin is rising, the Senate Natural Resources Committee was told today.

James Clark of the Wisconsin Muskrat and Beaver association said efforts to protect the otter should be directed at the enforcement of present legislation rather than enactment of new laws.

The only reason why I have an otter license is that I accidentally take an otter from time to time on my fur farm," he said.

Clark said present law limits the trapping of otter to two per year. "With the help of the Department of Natural Resources, the otter is able to survive," he said.

Kent Klepinger of the DNR said the otter population was stable or on the rise. He said otters are usually trapped

Berlin loses no-hitter; Bulldogs share lead

Berlin was strapped with its first East Central Conference baseball loss of the year 2-1 by Ripon and slipped to a one-half game lead over New London, a 1-0 winner over Weyauwega Monday, in the league standings.

Berlin (7-1) and New London (6-1) will square off today on the New London field.

In other area games, Appleton East pulled out a 4-3 Fox Valley Association victory over Menasha, Bonduel tagged Little Chute 4-1 in Central Wisconsin Conference action, Valdres blasted Freedom 11-1 on Roy Meier's no-hitter, and Stockbridge edged Sheboygan Christian 10-9 in a non-conference affair.

New London's run was plated in the fifth inning on a triple to right field by Steve Hanadel and a squeeze bunt by Rick Kaepernick.

Jim Snyder went the distance on the mound for NL, picking up his second win, and limited the Indians to two hits.

The Patriots (8-1) carried a 4-1 lead into the top of the seventh, but Menasha rallied for two runs without the aid of a base hit. East committed four errors in allowing the Bluejays to score their comeback runs.

Tim Kelley had a 2-run single in the fifth, and Tom Sommer's hit scored a run in the third for the Patriots. A wild pitch allowed East to score in the second inning.

In hurling the win for the Pats, Russ Thomack fanned 13 Bluejays and gave up one free pass. It was Thomack's fourth straight win.

Bonduel's Dave Reinke blasted a double and the Bears added a LC error

Paris — Tony Mundine, Australia, stopped Max Cohen, France, 4, mid-dwights.

Claims otter population is on increase

They testified at a hearing on a bill by Sen. Reuben LaFave, R-Conoto, under which otter pelts would have to be stamped by the DNR. LaFave said the measure would make it financially or economically unfeasible for the trappers to take otter.

But Cedric Parker, former managing editor of the Capital Times newspaper of Madison, contended the otter was becoming scarcer every year and urged the committee not to wait until it was too late to save the animal.

Parker said the otter "is not officially on the list of endangered species" but

Einstein has lead in city junior high meet

After the completion of field events Monday, Einstein Junior High School was leading in team scores for the annual City Junior High School Track meet, at Witte Field.

Running events were slated for this afternoon and Madison is defending champion in the meet.

Team totals after Monday included Einstein 67, Madison 50½, Wilson 37½ and Roosevelt 21.

Dennis Kroes hits 710 total

Dennis Kroes pounded a 710 national honor count in his first three games of a 4-game series in the NFL Football Bowling League at the Super Bowl Monday night.

Kroes had a 238 in his opening game, followed with 227 and added a 245 for the 710 total. He then cracked 227 in the finale for a 937 count.

Dick Schmidt had a 230 game and Jerry Hietpas fired 767 for four games.

Oneida loses opener in 'Dairyland'

Defending champion Oneida, which didn't lose a game all last season, was defeated by Nichols, 5-1, in a Dairyland League opener Sunday.

In other games, Bonduel beat Shioc-ton, 8-3, Seymour topped Black Creek, 9-3, and Freedom downed Kaukauna, 12-2. The test between Hofa Park and Navarino was rained out.

Nichols scored all of its runs off losing pitcher Steve Anderson in the first inning, on three hits and a pair of walks.

Fran Schmelzel, who allowed 10 hits and fanned nine, was the winning pitcher. Nichols' Jack Plamann was the top hitter with two safeties.

Ron Behrend drove in three runs and Tom Kroll fired a six-hitter to ignite Bonduel. Losing pitcher Bruce Frederichs allowed nine hits.

Jim Anshutz and Jerry Rohm collected two hits apiece to help Seymour whip Black Creek. Steve Hill was the winning pitcher, while Jerry Rohm was charged with the loss.

Hanson takes four firsts

Mike Hanson won four events, but the Clintonville High School track team dropped a 67-60 decision to Oconto Monday. Oconto took only six firsts—including both relays—but harvested many seconds and thirds.

Hanson won the 100-yard dash (:10.4), the 220 (:23.0), the 440 (:53.4) and the long jump (18 feet, 2½ inches). The Truckers' Cal Seelig set a school record in the mile with a run of 4:40.

Other Clintonville firsts were gained by Dave Oesterreich (high hurdles :17.2), Curt Williams (880, 2:06) Craig Campbell (2-mile, 10:29) and Bruce Balke (low hurdles, :22.6).

Aides' attempt to misuse CIA claimed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Central Intelligence Agency reportedly has accused former White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III of trying to enlist CIA help in a Watergate coverup.

CIA Deputy Director Vernon A. Walters testified in secret Monday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Later Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Walters had testified that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were "heavily involved" in efforts to misuse the CIA. Another source said one effort had been a Watergate coverup.

The account dovetails with statements by former acting FBI Chief L. Patrick Gray III. He testified before Senate Watergate investigators last week, and The Associated Press has obtained an official written digest of his remarks.

Gray said Walters got the FBI to postpone interviews with two Watergate witnesses last year on grounds the CIA had "some interest" in them.

Walters later conceded under pressure that the CIA actually had no interest whatsoever in the two, Gray said, but not before Ehrlichman personally ordered Gray to cancel a meeting set up to straighten out the matter between the CIA and FBI.

Gray said he and Walters agreed this "confusion" was "not normal," and the two agreed that Gray should tell President Nixon.

Gray talked to Nixon by telephone that same day, July 6, blamed the matter on "either carelessness or indifference" by White House aides, and warned Nixon that "this could be injurious to the agencies and could wound the President."

The witnesses are two men whose names appeared on checks that passed through the Nixon campaign headquarters and landed in the Miami bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of the convicted Watergate conspirators.

The witnesses are Mexican lawyer Manuel Ogario Daguerre and Minneapolis attorney Kenneth H. Dahlberg. The checks eventually furnished a link between the wiretappers and the Nixon re-election committee.

The fresh reports of White House misuse of the CIA came after a day of rapid-fire developments Monday.

Missing FBI records of wiretaps on 13 government officials and four newsmen were found in Ehrlichman's White House safe, acting FBI Director William Ruckelshaus announced. Ehrlichman said he hadn't known in detail what the documents contained.

Ruckelshaus said the taps had been ordered in 1969 after presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger told the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover he was "extremely concerned" about news leaks affecting foreign policy.

One of the taps picked up conversations of Daniel Ellsberg and figured in last week's dismissal of charges against him in the Pentagon papers trial.

Dean, meanwhile, turned over a batch of classified documents to federal court officials after Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica agreed to accept custody.

Dean had stashed the documents in a Virginia safe-deposit box, saying he was afraid someone might destroy them. He said they relate to the Watergate case, but otherwise gave no indication of what the documents say.

Haldeman was called by the Watergate grand jury for a five-hour repeat appearance and Ehrlichman testified briefly. On Capitol Hill, convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt was interviewed for three hours by Senate investigators.

The Senate Watergate committee continued gearing up for the start of public hearings, which begin Thursday.

All three television networks announced they will carry live coverage of the hearings. The Public Broadcasting Service will record the proceedings on videotape and present a delayed broadcast in prime evening viewing time.

The intense publicity was a subject of concern at the White House Monday. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the extensive coverage could jeopardize eventual prosecutions in the case, but that White House officials don't know anything that can be done about it.

Los Angeles prosecutors meanwhile sought to bring Ehrlichman before a grand jury to answer questions about the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist on Sept. 3, 1971.

A representative from the Los Angeles district attorney's office was in Washington today to contact Ehrlichman's lawyer. Ehrlichman has told FBI interviewers he found out about the burglary only after it happened, although it was carried out by men working for him at the White House.

Home purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newspaper report that President Nixon may have used 1968 campaign funds to buy his California estate has been denounced by the White House as "a total fabrication."

"It is a totally false and malicious report," said press secretary Ronald Ziegler Monday of the Santa Ana, Calif., Register story.

The newspaper quoted unnamed investigators for the Senate Watergate committee as saying they believed Nixon may have used $1 million in unreported funds left over from his 1968 presidential campaign to purchase the estate at San Clemente.

Sen. Sam J. Irvin, D-N.C., chairman of the special committee, said, "I never heard about it before you mentioned it." Staff lawyers said they had no such report.

"It is incredible that I even have to issue a denial of a story such as this," said Ziegler, who criticized the Associated Press for carrying the report.

Ziegler said that Nixon has always provided "a complete accounting of his holdings and assets" and added that details of the San Clemente purchase were previously spelled out by the White House.

Orange County land and tax records list the property in the name of Title Insurance and Trust Co. of Los Angeles. Ziegler, asked about this, said he hoped to provide a full account of Nixon's land holdings and purchase arrangements in the near future.

New problems plague already ailing Skylab

Skylab trouble

The drawing at the top depicts how a fully operational Skylab, which encountered problems with deployment of solar panel after a successful launch Monday from Cape Kennedy, would appear if no trouble had occurred. Steps 1-3 in the bottom drawing show how two Skylab beams that did not deploy were supposed to open.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue."

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyro-scope in the spaceship control system.

These add to the difficulties of space agency experts who are trying to salvage three manned missions from America's first space station.

The laboratory was launched, unmanned into a perfect 272-mile high orbit Monday, but suffered a severe blow when two of six solar panels failed to extend properly.

The panels are designed to convert the sun's energy to electrical power. With two panels inoperative, the power supply of the Skylab was cut in half.

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to have ridden another rocket into space today to link up with the station for a 28-day space adventure.

But the space agency late Monday postponed the astronauts' liftoff until Sunday to give experts a chance to work out a new flight plan adapted to the reduced power supply.

The failure of the two solar panels to deploy was traced to a mishap 63 seconds after launching of the Saturn 5 rocket when an aluminum micrometeorite shield ripped away from the side of Skylab, damaging or jamming the wing-like devices.

Hutchinson said the absence of the shield, only six-hundredths of an inch thick, apparently is responsible for the heat problems aboard the spaceship.

"It's like Houston on a hot, humid day in there," said the flight director, who was speaking at a news conference at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

He said temperatures of 100 degrees had been recorded in the center of the 85-ton workshop. Normal temperatures would be in the 60s or 70s, he said.

Air-conditioning units are aboard the craft, but to operate them now would be a serious drain on an already depleted power supply.

Hutchinson said that although "we have a serious anomaly and don't know yet how to cope with it," he was hopeful engineers would come up with a solution in the next two or three days, in time to launch the astronauts on Sunday.

However, the launch could be delayed again, or wiped out altogether, if a solution is not found.

He said the gyro-scope problem was not as serious as the electrical or heat problems.

Asked to assess the possibility of a launch Sunday, Hutchinson said: "I've not seen a show stopper yet."

Skylab Project Director William C. Schneider was optimistic at a Monday night news conference that all three planned Skylab missions could be salvaged. But that was before the latest problems cropped up.

"We still have high hopes that they can stay up 28 days, but during the last few days their activity will have to be curtailed because of the power shortage," he said.

"Everybody seems to be holding a post-mortem on Skylab," he said. "But we think we can achieve a lot of our objectives."

And he said there is still a possibility that the Skylab 2 and 3 flights, each scheduled for 56 days later in the year, might be fulfilled. He said that assessment probably can't be made until after the Skylab 1 voyage.

The laboratory, as large as a three-bedroom house, was lofted into a perfect 272-mile-high orbit Monday by a Saturn 5 rocket. Everything was going so well during the first orbit that a flight control official called it a "superbird."

But trouble began even before the Skylab reached orbit. Just 63 seconds after liftoff, a paper-thin aluminum overcoat designed to protect the lab from micrometeorite hits apparently was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, Schneider reported. This failure apparently damaged two winglike solar panels that were to have extended from the sides of the spaceship to convert the sun's rays to electrical power.

The two 30-foot panels deployed only partially and are useless. Efforts to dislodge them by radio command failed.

The mishap with the shield occurred 40,000 feet up while the 33-story-tall Saturn 5 was subjected to maximum pressure from high altitude wind shears. "There are severe vibrations at this point in the flight, and they might have caused pressure to build up under the shield, tearing it off," Schneider said. "We haven't broken down the data yet to determine exactly what happened."

Loss of the two panels reduced the amount of power available on the $294 million spaceship to about half its average usage of 8,000 watts, he said. The other 50 per cent is being provided by four other solar panels that did deploy on another section of the vehicle.

To help carry the load on the Skylab 1 flight, about 1,200 watts of power will be transferred from the Apollo comu and ship that will ferry the astronauts to the station, he said.

4,900 Army officers to get their release

WASHINGTON (AP) — A little less than 10 per cent of the Army's reserve officers will be notified next month they are being released from active duty.

The Army said Monday that the 4,900 officers are no longer needed in the post-Vietnam era. Only officers below the rank of lieutenant colonel are being asked to leave the service by Oct. 1.

Army officers in ranks higher than major are thinned out by encouraging their retirement, rather than outright discharge, said the Army.

About 4,000 of the officers, who served five years or more, will be eligible for readjustment pay of up to $15,000.

There are 53,200 reserve second lieutenants, first lieutenants, colonels and majors on active duty.

Couple expected to be charged in sex case

WAUSAU — Charges of kidnaping and forced sexual acts were expected to be filed today against a Langlade County couple who, authorities charge, were involved in a series of bizarre sex acts.

The man and woman, both 25, were arrested Sunday — the man after a shopping center stakeout and his wife later at their home in Elton. The couple has two daughters.

According to police, four young Wausau men reported separate incidents in which the couple took them at gunpoint to a rural area and forced them to have sexual intercourse with the woman. The men were later driven back to the point where they were picked up, police were informed.

Or Sunday, a judge, district attorney and court reporter went to the couple's home with a search warrant and confiscated evidence.

Four considered for prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Elliott L. Richardson says he might be able to announce his selection of a special Watergate prosecutor today.

In testimony Monday to a Senate committee holding hearings on his nomination, Richardson also disclosed the identities of four persons he has under final consideration for the post.

Senate sources indicated they expect the job to go to one of the four, U.S. District Court Judge Harold R. Tyler Jr. of New York. But Tyler would have to resign from the bench to accept the appointment.

Judge Tyler announced later in New York that he had withdrawn from consideration from the post because he was "reluctant to resign as an active judge."

The other three named by Richardson were:

—Warren M. Christopher, 47, a Los Angeles lawyer who was deputy attorney general in 1967-69 under both Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark in the Johnson administration.

—William H. Erickson, 49, of Denver, a Colorado Supreme Court Justice.

—David W. Peck, 70, a former justice of the New York appellate division and now a senior partner in a Wall Street law firm.

Richardson told the Senate Judiciary Committee he regards all four as highly qualified and said that was the reaction of committee members whom he consulted privately.

He previously had testified that if the committee, and the Senate as a whole, did not approve of his choice he would make another selection.

Richardson said that a judge would have to resign to become special prosecutor and could not expect to receive any future judicial appointment from the present administration—even reappointment to the court post he gave up.

Tyler, on whom an FBI check was begun over the weekend, was an assistant attorney general for civil rights in the Justice Department in 1960-61. He turned 51 Monday.

Richardson said that more than 100 names had been suggested to him for appointment as special prosecutor. One was recommended by Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., recently named Nixon's chief of staff, and another by Leonard Garment, now acting counsel to the President.

At first Richardson was reluctant to identify publicly the two suggested by the White House aides, but after conferring briefly with committee members, he said they were former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown of California and former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri. Both are Democrats.

U.S. balance of payments slips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. balance of payments deteriorated sharply in the first quarter of 1973, due largely to international monetary turmoil during the period, the Commerce Department reported today.

Two measures of the balance of payments both declined. The official reserve transaction balance was in deficit by $10.2 billion and the net liquidity balance was in deficit by $6.8 billion.

The deficit in the official reserve transactions balance, a measure of all official and private financial transactions, was $8.6 billion larger than in the fourth quarter of 1972 when it was $1.6 billion.

The deficit in net liquidity balance was $2.7 billion worse than the fourth quarter deficit of $4.1 billion.

The two deficits reported by the Commerce Department mean the outflow of U.S. dollars into world money markets increased sharply during the first quarter at a time when world governments were expressing concern that the flow of dollars led to international monetary disturbances.

The balance of payments deficits also occurred despite a substantial improvement in the country's trade deficit, which was $900 million in the first quarter, compared with $1.7 billion in the fourth quarter.

All figures in the Commerce Department balance of payments report are adjusted for seasonal variations.

The difference between the two balances is that the net liquidity balance does not include private flows of liquid capital, which are assets easily convertible to cash.

The deficit in the official reserve transaction balance was the worst since the third quarter of 1971 when it was $11.9 billion. The deficit in the net liquidity balance also was the worst since the 1971 third quarter when it was $9.4 billion.

Among factors contributing to the larger deficit was an increase in credit extended by U.S. banks and agencies and branches of foreign banks in the United States to foreigners, especially Canadian and Japanese. The government said there was a $1.2 billion unfavorable swing in liquid claims reported by banks.

It said liquid liabilities to foreign commercial banks, including foreign branches of U.S. banks, shifted adversely by $4 billion.

Ailing Hallows asks less duty

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin Supreme Court Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows said today he is undergoing treatment for leukemia and asked to be relieved of some of his duties.

In a letter to members of the state judiciary, the 69-year-old Hallows said he has asked his Supreme Court colleagues to relieve him of the duties of assigning trial judges and supervising court administrator Edwin M. Wilkie.

"As some of you know and all of you should know, I have been in University Hospitals the past three weeks for treatment of leukemia," Hallows wrote. "While it is too early to know the ultimate result of the treatment, my doctors advise me I must cut down my work," he added.

Hallows, who just recently turned 69, faces mandatory retirement from the seven-man tribunal at the age of 70.

Hallows said he will continue his other administrative duties as chief justice.

"I wish to reserve my energy for research, scholarship, and leadership in directing the Supreme Court in its primary function of determining precedential decisions," the justice said. "I expect to continue my efforts in encouraging citizens' participation in court reform," he said.

Hallows was hospitalized last month at the time that his wife died after a lengthy illness. He was released for the funeral services, then returned, and he remained hospitalized today.

Hallows was appointed to the high court in 1958, elected in 1959, and re-elected in 1969. He has been chief justice since 1968.

House bans bombing in Cambodia

The House of Representatives made a complete turnabout from its policies concerning military appropriations for Indochina ever since we began our ill-fated participation. It has voted an amendment to a defense appropriation bill to block the transfer of $430 million for bombing Cambodia.

However, this does not necessarily mean that the bombing is over. Elliot Richardson, wearing his temporary Defense Secretary hat, told the Senate Appropriations Committee last week that the Pentagon had enough money to keep on bombing anyway. But there is more to it than that.

President Nixon has impounded funds for a variety of projects, arguing that Congress was too much of a spendthrift and that the withholding of funds was necessary to control inflation. As a corollary, if such impounding is legal, he would seem to be able to juggle funds around and spend some appropriated for one purpose for something quite different. But two courts have held in regard to two different such appropriations that the President did not have the authority to impound the funds. It would seem to follow that he can't transfer them either.

In fact this latter conclusion only makes good sense. While the executive department might have emergency authority not to spend because of overall inflationary problems, spending for something other than that which Congress appropriated the money would appear to be handing over to the executive department authority specifically outlined in the Constitution as the prerogative of the legislative. The confusion of the checks and balances in our system, specifically on the war making power, has meant that Congress was in a practical sense sandbagged into approving accomplished deeds. But the arbitrary transfer of funds for bombing, especially when Congress has gone on record as opposing it, would be a direct slap that can hardly be ignored.

The change in the thinking of the House had a variety of causes. There are not supposed to be any American troops left in Indochina that our bombs are protecting. In the cease-fire agreement, although it did not specifically cover Cambodia, we were supposed to be turning over the settlement of their differences to the people of Indochina. The Gulf of Tonkin resolution has been repealed. Our POW's are free.

But one cannot ignore the probability that Watergate also has had its effect upon the House of Representatives. The clout and credibility of the White House are at least temporarily in decline.

Judge Doyle pushes prison reform

Federal Judge James Doyle has denied a motion by state correctional officials to dismiss a suit brought by an inmate of Waupun State Prison. The judge's statement extended far beyond the immediate case and points up problems facing correctional officials around the country.

Charles Mabry, who is serving a life sentence for being a party to murder and armed robbery, charged that his wife and two children were prevented from visiting him because he was confined in a segregated building and no one under 18 was permitted to visit. Judge Doyle ruled that "the interest of the plaintiff Mabry in associating with his children is a fundamental individual interest. I recognize no presumption that sufficient reason exists for the prison's denial of the visit."

But the judge elaborated on the immediate decision. Those trying to effect reasonable prison reform must operate "on a dark continent," he wrote. "I believe that the time has come . . . for the courts to mark with careful and deliberate firmness, the limits upon permissible government interference in the lives of the people. To the degree that the present correctional system cannot withstand this searching inquiry, it should be terminated, better soon than late."

But while the theory that punishment is the chief end of imprisonment or that tough measures can better rehabilitate offenders have largely been rejected, policies based upon those premises continue to rule. Most people probably agree with them. Someone who has broken the law, especially when another person has been threatened physically, is expected to suffer. His imprisonment is not seen merely as a protection for society, but as punishment. Since prisoners are sent off somewhere, society generally can forget about them.

Whatever may be the argument against this from a religious, moral or ethical point of view, on the pragmatic level it won't wash. It doesn't work. That's behind Governor Lucey's proposals for changing Wisconsin's system as much as the financial problem.

As a U.S. Court of Appeals decision overturning a former ruling by Judge Doyle indicated, there is no agreement among the judiciary as to the emphasis in what is regarded as a legitimate purpose of the state in the matter of human rights. Basically it appears to rely upon one's belief in how order can be maintained and man's potential advanced. Our leaning is in Judge Doyle's direction but development of a different approach will take a long time.

Undiplomatic diplomat

Dr. Leon Eisenberg, professor of psychiatry at Harvard, went to Greece early this year to serve as a character witness for Dr. Stefanos Pandelakis, a Greek pediatrician who was on trial for allegedly planting bombs in protest of the current Greek regime. Dr. Eisenberg has since written to Senator Edward Kennedy that our consul general in Athens believes the regime to be corrupt and said so.

There have been many complaints about the Greek colonel's junta and their alleged suppression of political opposition. There were also complaints about Vice President Spiro Agnew's visit to Greece some months ago and his praise for the orderliness of the regime. But the trouble is that the government of every nation in the world does not meet the standards which we try to set for ourselves. We have found most recently that setting the standards and abiding by them may be two different things also.

The problem is how to conduct our foreign relations with nations with different types of government and which we do not have much leverage to influence. There are the Communist regimes, for instance, and other left wing ones such as in Chile. There are the right wing ones such as Greece and Spain, probably as nasty toward civil rights as the Communies. There are countries like India which seem headed in the right direction but still with heavy restrictions of the press which prevent any real accounting to the people by the government. We can't go to war with them and make them all act the way we do. That doesn't look so noble right now anyway.

United States military and economic aid to Greece has been justified as Greece is a member of NATO and presents a bulwark against Soviet expansion in one direction. Such expansion is seen as a greater threat to American interests or freedom generally than anything originating in Greece. But condoning oppressive regimes is a poor way of standing up for human rights. It makes our struggle against communism in the name of mankind pretty hollow. After all does it really matter to the individual in the thumb screws that his torture is because he objects to a left or a right wing government?

If Dr. Eisenberg quotes our consul general in Athens, Charles Kennedy, correctly, then the man seems out of order. He is supposed to have said that the current Greek regime is corrupt but then so have all the previous Greek governments. He is at best an undiplomatic diplomat.

State budget debate becomes tedious

MADISON — Maybe the biennial wrangling about state budget details has become tiresome. Perhaps the ennui of the bystander relates to the realization that the "debate" includes a large quotient of pretense. One almost wishes for hard-headed negotiations in a closed room to ultimately resolve the dispute between the Democratic Assembly and Gov. Patrick Lucey, on the one hand, and the Republican Senate, on the other, and to save tedious weeks of byplay.

In any event, those persons who are obliged to sit in the Assembly or the Senate during these party quarrels that have become predictable in a politically divided system have the strongest doubt that the politicians' maeaeages are getting through and that the average man has more than a dim awareness that the harangues and the maneuverings at Madison have been resumed.

Taxes not needed
The Republicans started the session with a more deliberate effort to evolve group strategy than during other years of their bouts with Democratic executives. They hit upon the idea of countering Lucey's budget of goodies flowing from unprecedented surpluses of revenues with a proposal for rebates to taxpayers.

Events showed that the taxes levied two years ago were not needed, said the original Republican responses to the Democratic governor's blueprint of largesse to local treasuries. Ergo, they concluded, the state should now confess that error rather than compounding it by keeping those increases in effect. That could be done by revoking the tax boosts of two years ago and refunding the surplus to income taxpayers, personal and corporate, and to some extent, to real estate taxpayers.

Like certain kinds of music that plan sounded better than it was. Its weakness was that the taxpayers were not really listening. The average voter has comparatively little awareness of his state tax liability. It is extracted from his pay envelope at weekly intervals. If he is aware of the pay dilution, he is more concerned about the federal slices. And even there his plan is saved when in many instances he can claim a refund because of overpayments.

Nor is the man in the street especially concerned about corporate taxation or about the fact that the Democrats two years ago ignored an unwritten rule about raising them, only to find out a few months later that the action was not really needed.

Meanwhile, the Democratic administration has pounded away with enormous energy and ingenuity to identify itself almost completely with the cause of real property tax relief. Here is an issue that is responsive. Here is a question that thousands of persons can grasp. With hundreds of millions of spare money in prospect, the Democrats could promise explicitly and confidently that they would deliver that which politicians had talked about for 30 years.

Appreciation of the Republican position requires more fiscal sophistication from the voter than the politician can prudently rely upon. It is reasonably apparent to anyone who has a fair mastery of state finance that the Lucey administration is taking some risks. Some day, inevitably, there will be enormously difficult adjustments in state taxes to continue the disbursement of money to localities that is now contemplated.

The governor and his circle are quite aware of that, although they appear to believe that a worsening of price inflation will disguise the realities for a while. They know that one day the piper will be paid. Meanwhile they know that circumstances quite beyond their control have handed them a chance to achieve measurable if temporary property tax relief for the first time in many decades of agitation about it.

Here's word quiz about theater

A theater buff in Boston suggests a quiz about plays and the theater. To narrow it down, I have selected only 20th century plays; you are to identify them by the following descriptions of the setting or opening scene. Half right is an admirable score:

1. As the cuckoo clock strikes six, a dog is turning down bedcovers and running bath-water.
2. On a country road, with one tree in sight, a man sits on a mound, trying to take off his boot, when he is joined by a friend, whom he tells he spent the previous night in a ditch and was beaten up.
3. A lady representing the Humanity League visits an island factory which manufactures mechanical people designed to perform mental tasks.
4. A man appears at the window of the mayor's house in a medieval British town and informs the mayor's clerk he has come to request his own hanging.
5. Four men—three in white tie and tails and one in sweater and bare feet—are dancing a Mozart minuet with four women in gaudy evening gowns around the flower-laden coffin of a woman they have killed.
6. In the living-room of a farmhouse converted into a school, a lady is coaching an apathetic student in the reading of Shakespeare, while other girls sew and study Latin.
7. A clergyman is praying and weeping at the bedside of his daughter, when a message arrives from the doctor, reporting that he can find no natural cause for the child's illness.
8. A barker at an amusement park on the outskirts of Budapest is standing at the entrance of a carousel, coaxing customers to buy tickets.
9. A theatrical manager and cast are preparing the rehearsal of a play when they are interrupted by a strange family—a father, a mother in mourning, an elder son, a step-daughter, and two children.
10. A valet ushers a man into a drawing-room furnished in Second Empire style, and leaves, locking him in; the room contains no windows or mirrors, the light cannot be turned off, and the call-bell doesn't work.
11. A captain in a French castle is berating his steward for not producing any eggs for breakfast; later, the steward runs in with a basket of eggs, exclaiming that the hens have miraculously laid five dozen.
12. A woman and her mute daughter are riding on a canteen-keeper's wagon, drawn by her two sons; all are singing that soldiers must have food and drink if they are to fight well.

ANSWERS: 1. "Peter Pan" by Barrie. 2. "Waiting for Godot" by Beckett. 3. "R.U.R." by Capek. 4. "The Lady's Not for Burning" by Fry. 5. "The Blacks" by Genet. 6. "The Children's Hour" by Hellman. 7. "The Crucible" by Miller. 8. "Lilium" by Molnar. 9. "Six Characters in Search of an Author" by Pirandello. 10. "No Exit" by Sartre. 11. "St. Joan" by Shaw. 12. "Mother Courage" by Brecht.

What did CREEP do in California?

Without prejudging the ultimate outcome of due process of law, it is now perfectly clear that the Committee to Reelect the President (CREEP) set to work in 1971 to help insure the nomination of Senator George McGovern as the 1972 Democratic candidate for President. Its initial target in New Hampshire was Senator Edmund Muskie, who was running extremely well in the polls. CREEP may indeed have contributed to the fall-off in Muskie's New Hampshire primary vote, but largely because of the Senator's bizarre display of emotional overkill. Weeping in the snow outside the office of the Manchester Union Leader was hardly a convincing display of that stability under stress that Americans expect from prospective Presidents.

Then in Florida the CREEPY crawlers really had a field day. Now Muskie and Jackson were the targets, and a bogus letter on Muskie's stationery, accusing his opponents of various sexual adventures, was given wide circulation. The use of phony documents has a long history in American politics. In 1960, for example, voters in heavily Catholic districts were advised by some anonymous friend not to "Vote Catholic" and hard-nosed journalists were never convinced that this touching plea did not emerge from a sub-basement of the Kennedy organization. However, the letter of Muskie's stationery went well beyond the "boys will be boys" tradition. Again, however, it is hard to believe that CREEP influenced the vote: once George Wallace got on the Democratic ballot, the ball game was over.

The California primary
No, the big shoe has yet to drop, and my intuition plus a close reading of CREEP's modus operandi tells me that it is going to fall with a real thud. The question is what did they do in the big one? In California. Recall that by the time of the California primary the Democratic field had narrowed to George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey and that a Humphrey victory would have turned the nomination into a horse race. And, needless to add, President Nixon would have had a tougher contest if Humphrey had emerged as the Democratic nominee. Statistically the odds were still in the President's favor, but he would have had his work cut out for him.

Those of us who followed the Democratic primary contest (June 6, 1972) closely noted two interesting things: first, the polls released in the weeks before the vote were patently preposterous. If memory serves, one gave McGovern an absolute majority with an 11-point edge over Humphrey. While these polls were hitting page one, Humphrey and McGovern were engaging in three "debates." Even McGovern fans admitted that he was clobbered by the former Vice President, who—when he decides to give one speech instead of three—is a formidable opponent. On the morning after, it turned out that Humphrey had lost by only 200,000 votes out of three and a half million; he was less than five percentage points behind McGovern. Despite pollsters' pious claims to the contrary, polls do have a feedback effect. They hurt Humphrey and helped McGovern. Question: Did CREEP somehow find ways of fiddling the polls?

And all that money
Second, the McGovern campaign in California had more money than Bayer's has aspirin. In addition to the usual volunteers, they seemed to have paid organizers on every block in the state. Without for a moment suggesting that George McGovern was knowingly bankrolled by CREEP, the suspicion remains that all of that folding money didn't come from Stewart Mott. Question: Did CREEP set up dummy organizations to feed money into the McGovern campaign?

Now that the General Accounting Office—which is charged with oversight of matters of this sort—finds the Department of Justice at last answering the phone, a thorough investigation of the California primary should take top priority. One thing we can count on: CREEP did not undergo a miraculous moral conversion after Florida.

Looking back Fountains abound in Fond du Lac

100 YEARS AGO
The Crescent, May 3, 1973.

Fond du Lac abounds in artesian wells which have given it the name of Fountain City.

The vein of water is usually struck from 50 to 150 feet below the surface. George Huntley, Esq., proprietor of the Fond du Lac Paper Mill, desired to get a good stream, and passed through two veins of water and at 195 feet struck a large vein. The well is now discharging about 150 gallons of water per minute from a three-inch hole. The water is clear as crystal and possesses very strong magnetic qualities. A knife blade held in the water for a short time picked up a steel watch key and other tests were made.

The water is to be analyzed, as it is believed to contain as strong medicinal qualities as the famous magnetic springs of Michigan.

Jack Pribnow was Appleton High School's champion discus thrower who had shattered conference records several times that season.

10 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Gilbert Beglinger, president of the Women of First English Lutheran Church, and Mrs. Lloyd Bockin were co-chairmen of the Day of Reminiscing when all women of the church over 65 years of age were to be honored.

Planning the navigational cocktail party and dance to open the season for the Tri-City Boat Club were Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Zenefski, Menasha; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Voreka, Appleton; and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Prokash, Menasha.

Athletes get awards at Waupaca

WAUPACA — The annual high school athletic dinner was held here Monday. It offered a brief moment for expressing appreciation and reminiscing. For Athletic Director Le Roy Haberkorn and his coaching staff, lettermen and their managers, cheerleaders, members of the Downtown Coach Clubs, parents and friends, it was also a time for anticipation.

Capturing the mood of the moment, the speaker Dick Bennett, basketball coach at Eau Claire Memorial High School, urged that the young men weigh their experiences and the years ahead on the scale of appreciation.

"I am talking about the opportunities you have had and will have, how to appreciate them and how to use them each day to make a rich, full life," he said. "Hard work, respect for the other person, giving your best."

Stephen Hansen was chairman of the banquet, held at the Waupaca Country Club for a capacity crowd. Haberkorn introduced his coaches.

Sam Taylor was chosen by the Lettermen's Club as "favorite fan" of the year and received the Citizens Award.

Steve Janssen, senior, who won his

Planners may lose COG grant

East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission may be forced to return about $4,000 in federal crime-fighting funds its predecessor agency received during a period in 1971-72 because the latter failed to keep work-time records.

The funding involved was money the Wisconsin Council on Criminal Justice provided through the former Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) for a three-year juvenile education project.

The project planning has been completed, and juvenile education programs are being implemented and operated in several Fox Cities schools.

While the program funding can't be cut off because it no longer is being funded, East-Central faces the possibility of having to come up with the federal funding for the period in question.

The Wisconsin council had directed COG to keep daily time-work information on the projects related to the juvenile education program, but no records were kept. East-Central, through its legal counsel, got the employees to sign affidavits recently attesting that they worked on certain programs during that period, but the state rejected them.

"It's after the fact," said Kenneth Timpel, the council's director of grant administration. "It's not the true record of what happened."

He said the state wouldn't accept any back-tracking but would not file its audit of that period until a meeting with East-Central and former COG officials.

City Council meets today

CLINTONVILLE—The City Council will meet in a special session at 7:30 p.m. today at the city hall, to consider the question of whether or not the city should have a reassessment.

The subject has been under consideration since last year. Mayor Frank Sinkiewicz informed the council May 1 that some action would be needed regarding petitions on revaluation or reassessments.

City Attorney Ralph Lauer and City Assessor James Lindow were instructed to prepare specifications for different methods, with returns to be ready for the special meeting tonight.

Bonduel schedules technical institute adult classes for fall

BONDUEL—Adult classes for the fall term are being organized in the school district in cooperation with the Northeast Wisconsin Technical Institute.

Classes are being formed so adults can further their knowledge in the fields of trade and industry, home economics, health, business and general education.

Consideration is also being given to antique collecting and interpretive dance.

Weyauwega band concert Thursday night

WEYAUWEGA—The annual Spring Festival Concert will be presented by the high school band at 8 p.m. Thursday in the high school auditorium.

The band will perform selections prepared for the Waupaca Music Festival and other numbers. John Caves, student teacher instructor, will conduct two selections.

Senior band members and their parents will be introduced and a number of students will perform solos.

The concert is open to the public.

Lions to hear speaker

NEW LONDON — Bill Brault of Green Bay, a representative of the Heritage Country program developed to attract visitors to the 14-county northeastern Wisconsin area, will speak when the Lions Club meets at 6:30 p.m. today at the Rainbow Supper Club.

letters in football and baseball, received the W Club Award.

John Lasswell, senior, who earned his letters in football and track, was the winner of the City Police Award given each year to the athlete demonstrating strong leadership and exemplifying good sportsmanship.

Senior Gregg Nelson, a letterman in basketball and track, was presented with the WDUK Basketball Award by newscaster Dan Hansen.

"Most valuable player" awards in each of the eight sports were presented by Tom Boario, sports reporter for the Waupaca County Post.

Sharing the honors with the young athletes and their managers and cheerleaders were: Don Colbert head basketball coach; Al Schlatter, junior varsity basketball; James Mohr, head football coach; Ed Mathwig, assistant football; John Kauth, freshman basketball; getting billed for it now," he said.

He added that "It focuses on the types of problems we have with this committee (the council's park board) when we try to talk about a recreational director."

Proposals have suggested that the city and school district hire a joint director, but talks have repeatedly failed.

"I think the chairman of the park board (Ald. Mrs. Isabel Schoenrock) is completely out of line," Ramsdell added.

The district's rent of $100 plus lighting costs of $78 were the only charges for the stadium use last year for four home football games, but the rent will increase to a flat $500 a year next fall, the committee has told the board.

Gabriel said "They thought that Manawa was paying $1,200 a year, and a number of other schools were paying around $1,500 a year, and they thought they were getting gyped."

When board member David Wenberg asked, "What's to stop the city from coming back next year and charging us $1,500?" Mrs. Marion Markmann said "Nothing—and they could."

But the board said there was no alternative except to pay the higher rent, since the district does not have a stadium of its own at this time.

The board also voted to increase its coverage for buildings and furnishings, under a three-year insurance policy, by 30 per cent.

Ramsdell said the increase would insure the senior high school at $1,825 million, which was termed "still lower than we could replace it for." But the coverage can be increased at any time, he added.

The board also approved initiating girls' participation in interscholastic sports programs through the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association (WIAA). The school has had girls' sports for about three years.

The district also will buy a half-ton carry-all from Volz Chevrolet for $3,615, with a 350 cubic inch engine. The vehicle, which was the low bid received, has a larger load capacity and a heavier weight capacity than other models.

The board had accepted a bid on a three-quarter-ton Chevrolet last month, but the vehicle couldn't be delivered because the requested engine didn't meet federal emission standards, the dealer said.

Ramsdell was given authority to sell two buses, which will be replaced this summer, for $800 and $650, to an area church and a commercial firm.

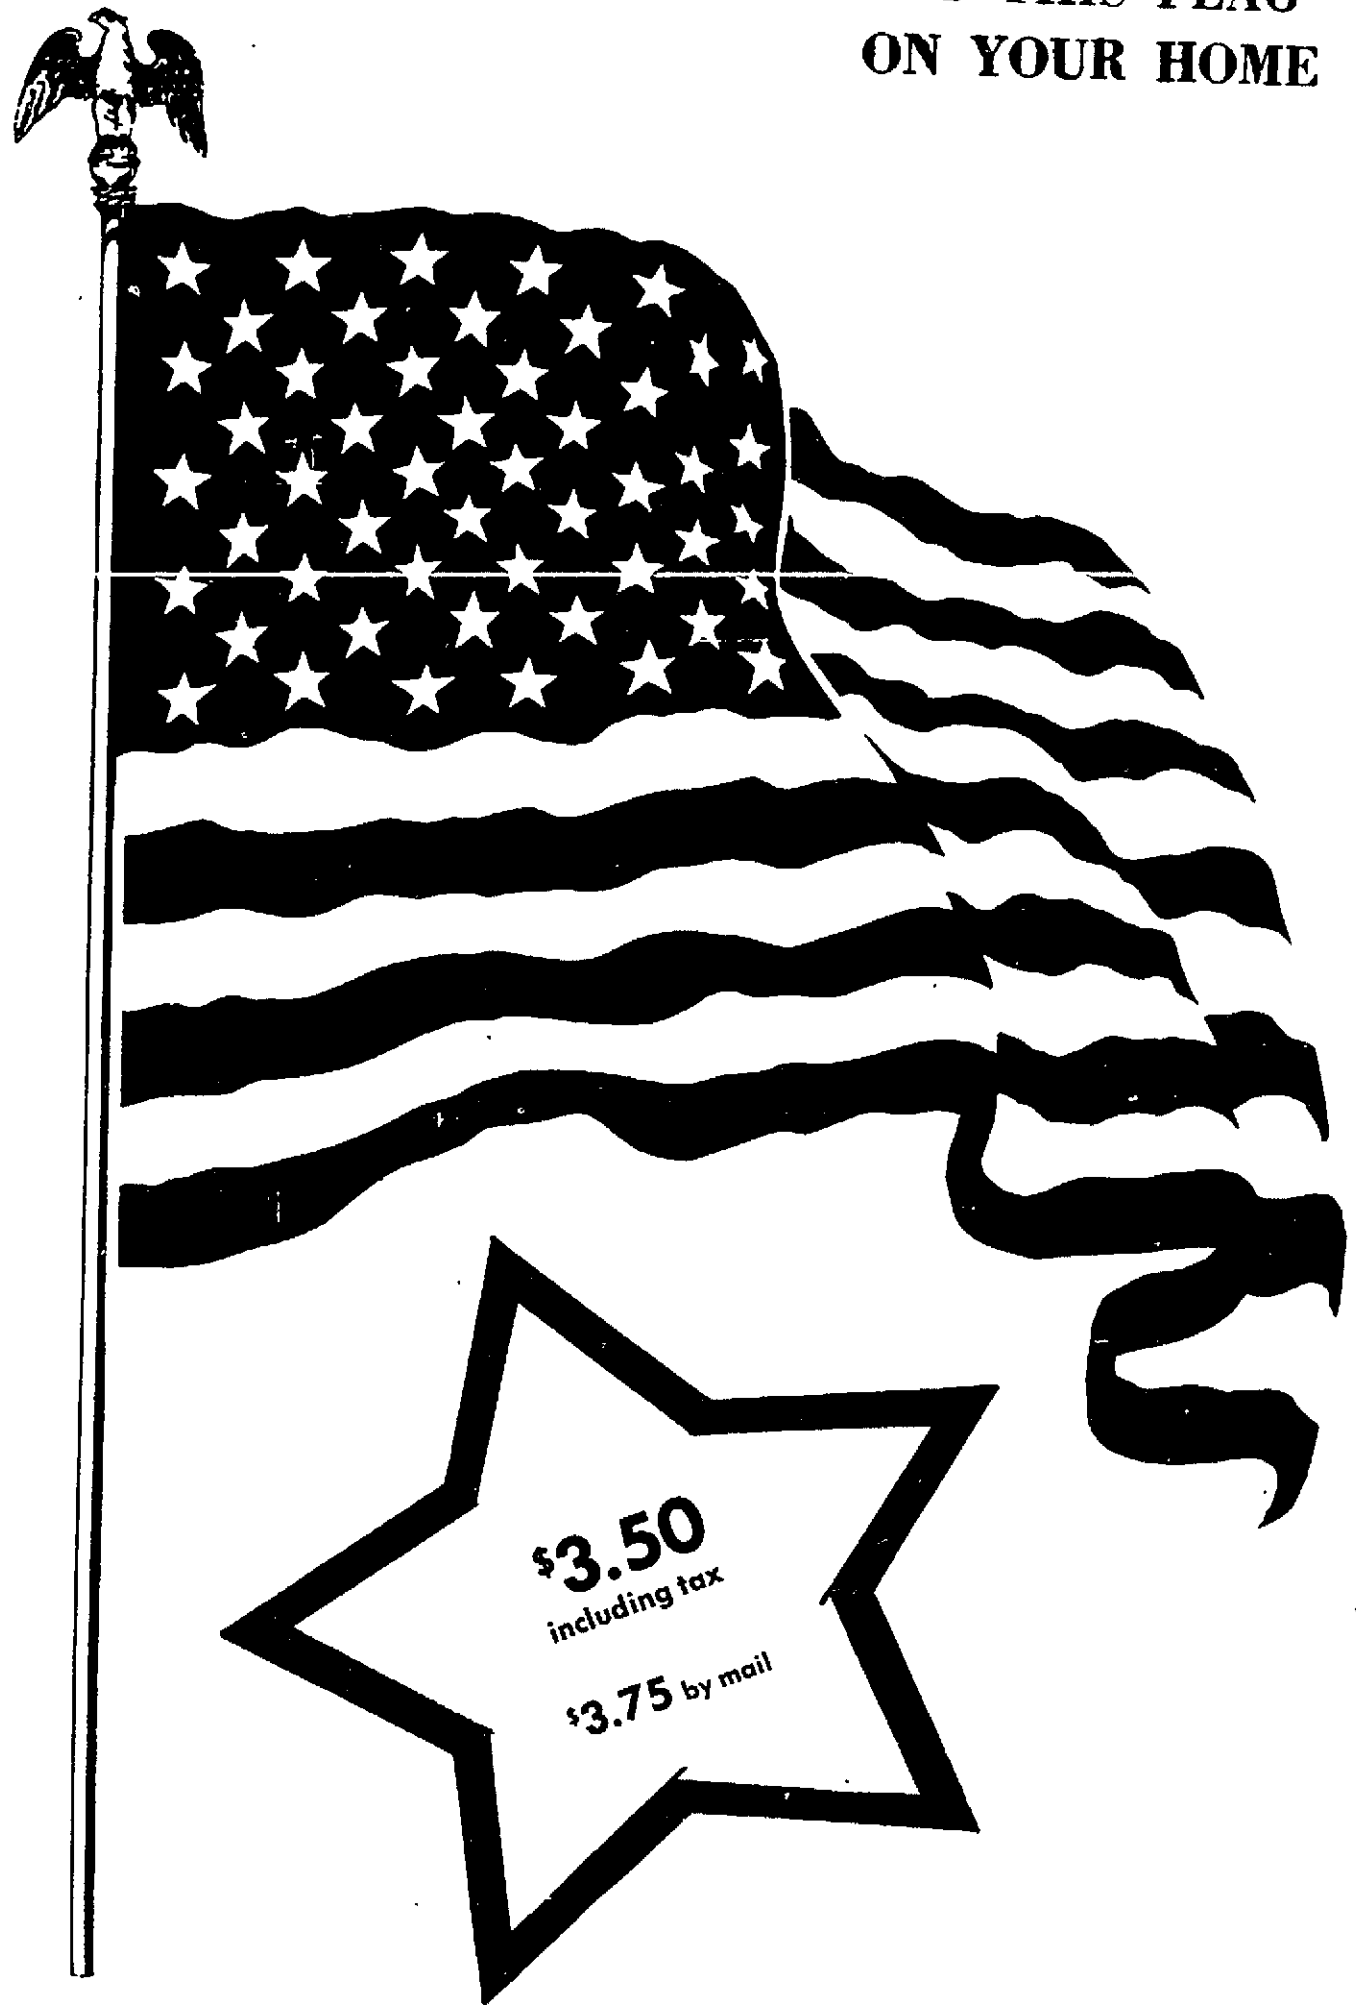

He was also given permission to hire summer help for maintenance projects this year. He said minimum wages will be paid so more students have the chance to work.

Amherst speaker

AMHERST—Richard Kussman, a former Amherst high school graduate, will be the commencement speaker at Amherst high school May 25.

Kussman, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kussman, is now living in Long Beach, Cal. A total of 56 Amherst high school students will receive diplomas.

FLY THIS FLAG ON YOUR HOME

When this flag flies on a home it says AMERICANS LIVE HERE. They love their country. They remember the sacrifices made by so many to bring their country so far along the road of history. The fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence. The framers of the Bill of Rights. The writers of the constitution. They remember Francis Scott Key and the birth of the Star Spangled Banner on a black night at Fort McHenry. They fly their flag to honor Washington in the Wilderness, Lincoln at Gettysburg. John Paul Jones and Paul Revere. Old Glory symbolizes all the countless unknown Americans at Valley Forge and York Town, New Orleans, Tripoli, Omaha Beach and Iwo Jima, South Korea and Vietnam. Victories and heartaches, successes and failures. They remember.

These are the things for which Old Glory stands.

We believe every home should fly the flag on every national holiday. So that you don't have to turn Betsy Rossy and make your own . . . we offer a fine home flag set at our cost as a patriotic public service. Buy one and fly one. Mail your order or come in for yours. For your convenience a flag coupon is included below. Snip it out and bring it in, now.

Dennis Kroes hits 710 total

Dennis Kroes pounded a 710 national honor count in his first three games of a 4-game series in the NFL Football Bowling League at the Super Bowl Monday night.

Kroes had a 238 in his opening game, followed with 227 and added a 245 for the 710 total. He then cracked 227 in the finale for a 937 count.

Dick Schmidt had a 230 game and Jerry Hietpas fired 767 for four games.

Oneida loses opener in 'Dairyland'

Defending champion Oneida, which didn't lose a game all last season, was defeated by Nichols, 5-1, in a Dairyland League opener Sunday.

In other games, Bonduel beat Shioc-ton, 8-3, Seymour topped Black Creek, 9-3, and Freedom downed Kaukauna, 12-2. The test between Hofa Park and Navarino was rained out.

Nichols scored all of its runs off losing pitcher Steve Anderson in the first inning, on three hits and a pair of walks.

Fran Schmelzel, who allowed 10 hits and fanned nine, was the winning pitcher. Nichols' Jack Plamann was the top hitter with two safeties.

Ron Behrent drove in three runs and Tom Kroll fired a six-hitter to ignite Bonduel. Losing pitcher Bruce Frederichs allowed nine hits.

Jim Anshutz and Jerry Rohm collected two hits apiece to help Seymour whip Black Creek. Steve Hill was the winning pitcher, while Jerry Rohm was charged with the loss.

Hanson takes four firsts

Mike Hanson won four events, but the Clintonville High School track team dropped a 67-60 decision to Oconto Monday. Oconto took only six firsts—including both relays—but harvested many seconds and thirds.

Hanson won the 100-yard dash (:10.4), the 220 (:23.0), the 440 (:53.4) and the long jump (18 feet, 2½ inches). The Truckers' Cal Seelig set a school record in the mile with a run of 4:40.

Other Clintonville firsts were gained by Dave Oesterreich (high hurdles, :17.2), Curt Williams (880, 2:06) Craig Campbell (2-mile, 10:29) and Bruce Balke (low hurdles, :22.6).

Military lull in Laos won't last for long

VIENTIANE, Laos—By blocking a coalition government agreed in principle by Lao Communist leaders over two months ago, North Vietnam uses the Paris ceasefire agreement of Jan. 27 to further its imperial ambitions for Indochina.

The truth, sugarcoated in Washington, is depressingly clear in this hot, dusty little capital in Asia's hinterland: Hanoi will send men and supplies into South Vietnam through Laos until it completely controls Cambodia or wins the Vietnam war or both. Thus, the present military lull in Laos after a decade of bloodshed is merely Hanoi pausing while it awaits results elsewhere.

In Washington, high officials always felt the Paris agreement would bring peace to Vietnam only if Hanoi fulfilled its promise to remove North Vietnamese troops from Laos and cease using this country as a supply corridor. In Vientiane, there was no doubt the Communists would break that promise.

Nobody understands these harsh realities better than Prince Souvanna Phouma, prime minister of Laos for 11 years and at age 71 perhaps Indochina's only genuine statesman. "The Communists want Cambodia in order to attack South Vietnam," he told us in an interview in his villa. "First Cambodia, then South Vietnam. After that, Laos will fall by itself."

Clearly, the Hanoi politburo intended to haggle endlessly over a separate ceasefire in Laos following Jan. 27, while launching its Cambodian offensive. But Souvanna crossed up Hanoi by giving the Pathet Lao, the Lao Communists, almost everything they asked — including half the seats in a new coalition cabinet.

Souvanna's concessions in the Laos ceasefire agreement signed here Feb. 22, besides infuriating right-wing Lao politicians and generals, stunned Hanoi. Whereas the Paris agreement's Article 20 requires all foreign troops to leave Laos but sets no time limit, the Vientiane agreement requires them out 60 days after the new coalition government takes office. Hanoi would have no part of that.

The result: Hanoi ordered the Pathet Lao to delay seating the new government. So the Pathet Lao negotiator regularly visits the office of the Lao government negotiator, compliments him on his air-conditioner in sweltering Vientiane and then leaves. There will be no serious negotiations until the Pathet Lao gets a green light from Hanoi. Meanwhile, newly free of U.S. air raids, Hanoi is sending trucks bumper-to-bumper in broad daylight down the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos for the military build-up in South Vietnam. Inside Laos, the Communists are building roads and houses, attempting to lure some 200,000 to 300,000 refugees back to Communist controlled territory (two-thirds of Laos but containing barely 20 per cent of its 3 million people).

Some U.S. and Lao officials believe Hanoi will continue this ominous lull until it conquers South Vietnam. Others feel Hanoi may give the green light to resume negotiations when Cambodia falls. With a guaranteed supply route through Cambodia, it might consent to token troop withdrawals along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

But everybody here agrees North Vietnam will never remove all its 80,000 regulars from Laos. Hanoi simply cannot count on Pathet Lao troops against CIA-trained Lao irregulars. Sisouk Na Champassak, the knowledgeable defense minister, told us Hanoi will never go below 10,000 regulars.

Moreover, resumed negotiations would confront the partition question.

Souvanna envisions a neutral, independent, non-partitioned Laos with government power shared between Communists and non-Communists. The Pathet Lao, following Hanoi's orders, insist on virtual partition: Communist ministers taking seats in Vientiane's coalition cabinet but Communist domains hermetically sealed by military buffer zones.

Even partition would be only an interim step. Seated in the same wing chair, Souvanna Phouma precisely repeated what he told us three years ago: "We must not forget that Ho Chi Minh hoped to follow the French in ruling all Indochina through the Vietcong, Khmer Rouge (in Cambodia) and Pathet Lao. Now Hanoi wants to execute Ho's wishes."

What can stop Hanoi? "Only the great powers, guaranteeing our neutrality and independence," he replied. That means continued responsibility here for the United States, fatigued by long frustration in Indochina and now unbalanced by the Watergate scandal—a subject worthy of a future column.

Police & fire beat

Three persons were taken by private ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital after they were injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of Badger Avenue and Locust Street about 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

One driver, Robert A. Meyer, 23, Menasha, received scalp and nose cuts, while two passengers in the second car complained of back pains. They were Doris M. Giles, 49, 1357 Mission St., Menasha, and Patricia A. Schwab, 32, 802 W. Spring St., Appleton. The second driver, Donald M. Schwab, 37, also of 802 W. Spring St., was not injured.

Police said the Meyer auto turned left from Locust onto Badger into the path of the Schwab car, which was heading north on Locust.

FREEDOM — Three motorcyclists were taken by private ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital after they were injured when two cycles collided on Outagamie County Trunk E, one-quarter mile southwest of Van Asten Road about 4:50 p.m. Sunday.

One driver, William J. Van Eperen, 20, route 2, Kaukauna, suffered knee and arm injuries, while the second driver, Gerald W. Conrad, 18, route 1, Kaukauna, sustained multiple cuts and abrasions. Conrad's passenger, Toni M. Simons, 19, also of route 1, Kaukauna, received ankle abrasions and possible internal injuries.

Police said the two machines were in a group of cycles headed northeast on E toward De Pere when the two cycles collided.

Contract negotiated by state, employe union

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — In the first contract negotiated under a state employee relations law enacted last year, the state and its employe union have agreed on a two-year contract.

Negotiators said agreement came Saturday after a 20-hour negotiating session.

Details will not be announced until the pact is drafted into final form and made available to the 13,500 members of the Wisconsin State Employees Union, negotiators for both sides said.

They said that would probably take one week. It will then be submitted to the membership for ratification. The agreement "clearly indicates that collective bargaining can work on a statewide basis," their statement said.

The contract is to replace some that expire June 30. The union represents blue collar, technical and security and public safety bargaining units.

Under the new employee relations law, the ratified agreement undergoes a public hearing by the Joint Legislative Committee on Employment Relations.

After the hearing, the contract would have to be approved by the legislature and the governor.

Spokesmen said the 80-page agreement covered 226 separate items. It is reportedly less costly than the union's original $50 million contract proposal.

BOARD OF APPEALS
VILLAGE OF COMBINED LOCKS
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

To All Interested Persons:
Pursuant to Section 19.14, Municipal Code of the Village of Combined Locks, the Village of Combined Locks Board of Appeals will conduct a Public Hearing to consider the denial by the Village Building Inspector of a building permit request by Petroleum Real Co., Inc., said denial being based on inadequate front-side yard and twenty-foot rear yard requirement by proposed building plans as pertain to real property described as follows:

The south 70 feet of the east 75 feet of a parcel of land in part of Lot 1, Block 8, according to the recorded Assessor's Map of the Village of Combined Locks, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, more fully described as follows: commencing at a point in the center line of County Trunk Highway "N", 285.25 feet South of the Southern right-of-way line of the C. & N. W. R. R., thence North 89° 54' East, along the South line of land owned by the Schmitt Oil Co., 240 feet, to the Southeast corner of said land, as the point of beginning, thence North 0° 04' West, along the East line of said Oil Company's land, 308.7 feet to the Southern right-of-way line of the C. & N. W. R. R., thence South 89° 54' East, 128.8 feet to a point, thence South 89° 54' West 128.7 feet to the point of beginning and containing 0.92 acre of land, more or less.

Objection to the denial of the permit has been filed with the Board of Appeals alleging as follows: It is impossible to place the building so as to comply with side and rear yard requirements under the Village Zoning Code because appellant would be unable to properly utilize its surrounding property, which contains a warehouse with loading dock in close proximity to the proposed building site making it impossible for trucks to utilize the loading dock. Construction of the proposed building up to the neighboring lot lines will in no way interfere with or be detrimental to the neighboring properties.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Attention to diet cuts skin cracks near nails

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For many years I have been plagued with the problem of skin cracking near the fingernails. This is annoying and painful. Can something be done about it?—S.L.M.

Most of us have had an occasional hangnail—and yes, it's annoying. But when the problem persists, it's time to do something about it.

The most frequent—but not the only—cause is that the cuticle may adhere to the nail as it emerges. As the nail grows, the cuticle (skin) is stretched, until the crack or tear occurs.

Best solution is also the simplest. When the skin has been softened (after a leisurely bath, or after soaking the fingers) gently push the cuticle back. You can get orangewood sticks at the drug store for this purpose. Try doing this regularly say at least once a week, and see if that doesn't help.

Other possible causes may be irritation from polish remover or from whatever household chemicals you happen to use.

Inadequate protein in the diet can cause the cuticle to be thin and fragile, so attention to diet also may be a help to you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 15, has an unsightly case of blackheads. There is no way to change her hair style as it is cut in a shag. What foods, besides greasy, sugary types, shouldn't she eat?

Are there any creams, pills, removers, etc., she could use to get rid of them? If so, where can you buy them? Washing doesn't seem to help much and we haven't money for a dermatologist.—Mrs. G.L.

Being vary of fats and greasy and fried foods is the principal dietary consideration; studies have not supported the long-held theory that chocolate is harmful. Or anyway, haven't borne out the idea that avoiding chocolate is helpful.

Washing, if done the right way, is a necessary part of the process, but it can't do the whole job, either.

If your daughter's problem is purely a matter of blackheads, careful use of a comedo extractor—which is a very inexpensive device—should answer a good deal of her trouble. (Don't try to squeeze out blackheads, though. That can damage the skin.)

There aren't any pills or creams which will put an end to blackheads. Drying lotions can be helpful, though.

I'm not entirely sure you wouldn't be wise to make at least a single visit to a dermatologist, or even to your regular doctor, to make sure these blackheads aren't progressing to acne, which is a considerably more difficult condition.

In any event, I'd suggest you send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for my booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." You may not need all of the information in it, but evidently you do need some of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About five years ago I was told my rectal soreness was due to cryptitis. I still have considerable soreness at times. Is there any treatment?—C.R.

The crypts are folds of the membrane in the rectal opening. If these folds, or crypts, become infected, you have the discomfort, and usually there is some discharge besides.

First treatment is the use of antibiotics, applied locally. If they do not clear up the infection (and soreness), surgery to trim the thickened tissues may be required.

Note to Mrs. W.W.: No, honey cannot be used by diabetic patients. It is primarily sugar, and sugar is what you must avoid.

Mononucleosis is primarily a disease of young people. To learn more about it, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "Mononucleosis," enclosing with your request a long, self-addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Menasha man ordered to make back payments

A 30-year-old unemployed Menasha man was ordered last week to start making $30 per week child support payments or face a jail term, despite the man's contention that his ex-wife and her new husband started receiving Aid to Dependent Children benefits shortly after they moved into a $36,000 house on Appleton's east side.

Clifford G. Engel, 919 Meadowview Drive, appeared before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 1, where the defendant was accused of being $550 in arrears.

Engel, who admitted being in arrears because he receives only $90 per week for unemployment compensation and is going to school while supporting a wife and two children, was directed to make the payments for the support of two daughters, ages 5 and 7, from a previous marriage to Barbara H. Beyer, 28, 1024 N. Bay Ridge Road.

Non-payment of the support money, which goes to the county welfare department to help offset the ADC payments to Mrs. Beyer, would result in Engel's being jailed for contempt of court.

Mrs. Beyer told Van Susteren that she and her husband Douglas receive $233 per month in ADC benefits under the Step Parent Assistance program, since Beyer has not adopted the two children. She applied for those benefits 13 days after the couple purchased the $36,000 home in the Colony Oaks section on March 23. They previously had lived in an $18,000 home on the city's south side.

Mrs. Beyer told the judge that the mortgage payments on the new house amount to $230 per month, leading Van Susteren to comment that the government is, in effect paying for the couple's new home.

The Beyers' county social worker refused to discuss their application for assistance, stressing the confidentiality of the matter. But she did indicate that from the information she received, the couple's application was in order and their receipt of the $233 per month from ADC perfectly legal.

Because Beyer is not the legal father of the two girls, the application for ADC could not take into account his $9,000 per year earnings, but only his wife's income. She is unemployed.

Family Court Commissioner James

R. Long said the Beyers' financial position should in no way affect the case against Engel, since the hearing was an order to show cause against Engel for non-payment of the support money.

Long maintained that Engel, who earned nearly $14,000 per year as a drug store manager, could get a job if he wanted. Engel told the court he is studying for a real estate broker's license.

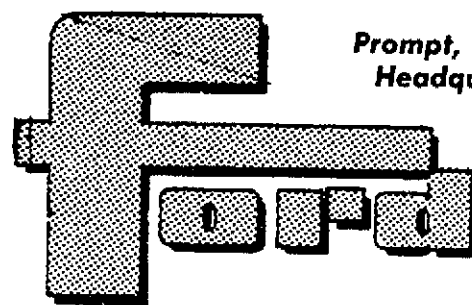

Mrs. Beyer was granted a divorce from Engel by Van Susteren on July 5, 1971, on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. At that time, Engel was ordered to pay $100 per month in support payments. Those payments were later increased to $160 and subsequently cut to $130.

Board accepts but discourages kindergarten age

NEW LONDON — The board of education Monday accepted a motion from a board member that will abide with the state Supreme Court's recent ruling on kindergarten admission, but also will urge parents to start their children in school later.

Board member David Wenberg said the district recently studied and discussed elementary programs, including remedial reading, and found that the main problem is that children start school too young.

"What's wrong with giving these kids a little longer to mature?" he asked.

The district will go along with the state's Dec. 1 deadline date, but will recommend that parents start their children the next year if their birthdays are after Sept. 1. Therefore children who are 5 by Dec. 1 will be allowed, but discouraged, to start school that fall.

"Why are we rushing these kids through school so fast—to a world of unemployment?" Wenberg asked.

He said students, when they are more mature, learn easier.

Vikings reacquire Berry

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings reacquired quarterback Bob Berry from Atlanta Monday as partial compensation when reserve quarterback Bob Lee and middle linebacker Lonnie Warwick signed with the Falcons.

The Vikings will also get Atlanta's first-round choice in the National Football League's 1974 college draft as part of losing the two free agents. Both had played out their options and were free to sign with another club as of May 1.

Vikings General Manager Jim Finks said Berry expressed some surprise when he was informed of the transaction. Berry could not be reached at his home in California.

Lee, a 6-foot-2 punter and quarterback, described the trade as "a great opportunity—a chance to be a starting quarterback in the NFL. That's what every quarterback wants."

Lee said he played out his option after Fran Tarkenton returned to Minnesota from the New York Giants last year. Lee was used sparingly in 1972.

Warwick, a Vikings regular since 1965 until he suffered a knee injury last year and sat out half the season, said he played out his option because he could not agree on a contract with the team. "I think my knees are 100 per cent. I work on them quite a bit, using exercises a surgeon set up for me," Warwick said.

A spokesman for the NFL at its league headquarters in New York said the transaction leaves nine free agents in the league, down from the 13 who officially became free agents on May 1. The spokesman refused to name any of them.

Berry was signed by the Vikings in 1965 after setting alltime University of Oregon passing records with 271 completions and 37 touchdowns. He started only one league game while Norm Van Brocklin was the Vikings' coach and never started at all during Bud Grant's first season. He was sold to Atlanta prior to the 1968 season.

Last year, Berry ranked fourth among all NFL quarterbacks with a 55.6 per cent passcompletion record, hitting 154 for 2,158 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Grant said of the acquisition: "Berry's record speaks for itself." Van Brocklin, the Atlanta coach, said: "We felt we had to make a change at quarterback." Referring to Lee, he added: "He beat us twice in the mud down here and the snow up there." He said Lee would try out as a punter as well as a quarterback.

Lee attempted only six passes last season and completed three for 75 yards. During his career with the Vikings, he completed 95 of 186 for 1,382 yards, nine touchdowns—and nine interceptions.

Rutherford thinks speed's too high

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There apparently won't be any 200-mile-per-hour laps at Indianapolis Motor Speedway this May. And Johnny Rutherford, a cool-headed Texan who bears the scars of battle, could care less.

The 35-year-old veteran driver from Ft. Worth, Tex., victim of a trail of broken engines and parts at Indianapolis over the years, captured the front row pole position for the May 28 500-mile race in first-round qualifying Saturday.

He did it by pushing his Team McLaren car around the 2½-mile oval at a four-lap speed of 198.413 m.p.h. to top Bobby Unser's old 10-mile standard by almost three miles per hour. His fast lap of 199.071 m.p.h. missed the 200 mark by 21 one-hundredths of a second.

A few minutes later, Rutherford was telling newsmen: "It wouldn't hurt my feelings a bit if they slowed these cars down 20 miles an hour, or even more. We're going too fast for close competition."

The first weekend of qualifying for the world's richest auto race—the 1972 payoff exceeded $1 million for the second straight year—saw 30 drivers make the lineup, leaving only three spots to be filled in final runs next Saturday and Sunday.

The 30 qualifiers averaged a sizzling 192.572 m.p.h.—almost nine miles per hour faster than last year—and forecast a minimum speed of almost 190 even to make the field.

The weekend thus was a mixture of blazing speed, so high that even Rutherford was somewhat troubled, and tragedy.

Art Pollard, a 17-year veteran and one of the best liked drivers in racing, was killed in a searing, grinding crash of his Cobre-Eagle during a warmup session that preceded Saturday's initial qualifying runs.

Claims otter population is on increase

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The otter population in Wisconsin is rising, the Senate Natural Resources Committee was told today.

James Clark of the Wisconsin Muskrat and Beaver association said efforts to protect the otter should be directed at the enforcement of present legislation rather than enactment of new laws.

The only reason why I have an otter license is that I accidentally take an otter from time to time on my fur farm," he said.

Clark said present law limits the trapping of otter to two per year.

"With the help of the Department of Natural Resources, the otter is able to survive," he said.

Kent Klepinger of the DNR said the otter population was stable or on the rise. He said otters are usually trapped

Berlin loses no-hitter; Bulldogs share lead

Berlin was strapped with its first East Central Conference baseball loss of the year 2-1 by Ripon and slipped to a one-half game lead over New London, a 1-0 winner over Weyauwega Monday, in the league standings.

Berlin (7-1) and New London (6-1) will square off today on the New London field.

In other area games, Appleton East pulled out a 4-3 Fox Valley Association victory over Menasha, Bonduel tagged Little Chute 4-1 in Central Wisconsin Conference action, Valders blasted Freedom 11-1 on Roy Meier's no-hitter, and Stockbridge edged Sheboygan Christian 10-9 in a non-conference affair.

New London's run was plated in the fifth inning on a triple to right field by Steve Hanadel and a squeeze bunt by Rick Kaepernick.

Jim Snyder went the distance on the mound for NL, picking up his second win, and limited the Indians to two hits.

The Patriots (8-1) carried a 4-1 lead into the top of the seventh, but Menasha rallied for two runs without the aid of a base hit. East committed four errors in allowing the Bluejays to score their comeback runs.

Tim Kelley had a 2-run single in the fifth, and Tom Sommer's hit scored a run in the third for the Patriots. A wild pitch allowed East to score in the second inning.

In hurling the win for the Pats, Russ Thomack fanned 13 Bluejays and gave up one free pass. It was Thomack's fourth straight win.

Bonduel's Dave Reinke blasted a double and the Bears added a LC error

Ripon took advantage of two errors, a walk, and two stolen bases in scoring its run in the first and fifth innings.

Losing pitcher Jon Brisky scored Berlin's run with a sixth inning single.

Larry Joas drove in the tying run and scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh for Stockbridge (2-6).

Joas also collected three hits in five trips to the plate.

Jabbar edges Cowens in All-Star voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Nate Archibald, Kansas City-Omaha's relatively small guard, was the biggest vote collector on the National Basketball Association 1972-73 All-Star squad announced Monday, while Boston's Dave Cowens, the league's Most Valuable Player, failed to make the team.

The 6-foot-1 Archibald, the NBA leader in scoring with 2,719 points for a 34.0 average in 80 games, in assists with 910 for an 11.4 average and in minutes played with 3,681, received 15,836 points from a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters in the league's 17 cities. Each city received a full vote, meaning 17,000 would be the maximum.

Joining Archibald on the first team were forwards John Havlicek of Boston and Spencer Haywood of Seattle, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee, and guard Jerry West of Los Angeles.

The closest voting was for center, where Abdul-Jabbar edged Cowens, 10,822 to 10,356. The 7-2 Abdul-Jabbar, named to the first team for the third straight season, finished second in scoring, third in field goal percentage and fourth in rebounding. Cowens, 6-9, was third in rebounding and recently was chosen as the league's MVP in balloting by the NBA players.

Cowens was chosen to the second team, along with forwards Elvin Hayes of the Baltimore (now Capital) Bullets and Rick Barry of Golden State, and guards Walt Frazier of New York and Pete Maravich of Atlanta.

Each player on the first team will receive $500, while each second-team member will get $250.

West's selection was his fourth in a row to the first team and a record-tying 10th time he has been named to the All-Star squad. Other chosen 10 times were Bob Cousy, Bob Pettit and Elgin Baylor—all now inactive.

For Havlicek, it was the third straight year he made the first team. Haywood has been a first-team pick in each of his two full seasons in the NBA, while Archibald's selection was his first.

Havlicek was the second leading vote getter with 15,724, followed by West with 13,265, Haywood with 12,621 and Abdul Jabbar.

Newcombe passes 1st test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Defending champion John Newcombe took today off from singles competition in the $150,000 Alan King-Cesars Palace Tennis Classic after an opening day victory. Meanwhile, the top three seeds had their first matches in singles play.

The fourth seeded Newcombe is not playing full time on the pro circuit this year, concentrating instead on competing for Australia on the Davis Cup series.

But he needed little time to put away France's Georges Goven 6-2, 6-2 in the opening match Monday.

No. 1 seed Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif. opens play in both singles and doubles, where he's also seeded first with teammate Bob Lutz of Sausalito, Calif.

Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall the second and third seeded Australians also make their first Angles appearances in today's second day of competition.

In other singles matches Monday, sixth-seeded Marty Riessen beat Charles Pasarell 7-6, 6-3 and Cliff Drysdale, seeded seventh, downed Gerald Battrick 6-2, 6-0.

Arthur Ashe and Roscoe Tanner teamed for a 6-7, 6-3 doubles victory over Cliff Richey and Drysdale while Rosewall and countryman Fred Stolle joined to beat Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia and Jaime Fillol of Chile 7-6, 6-1.

The week-long tournament winds up with singles and doubles finals on national television Saturday and Sunday.

The singles winner collects $30,000 with the top doubles team dividing $10,000.

Joy of cooking band coming to Cinderella

Joy of Cooking will perform at the Cinderella Ballroom on Wednesday. A local act will also appear on the bill.

Joy of Cooking is a San Francisco Bay Area-based group with a reputation for exuberant performances. Over the past four years, they have recorded three albums for Capitol Records and made live appearances throughout the U.S. and Canada. The Joy of Cooking have been praised in the pages of Time, the New Yorker, the Village Voice, MS, and Mademoiselle, as well as in daily and underground papers across the country. In a recent album review in the L.A. Times, Bob Hilburn stated: "The Joy of Cooking may well be one of our two or three distinctive bands."

Joy of Cooking began in 1967 as a vehicle for the original songs of Terry

Garthwaite and Toni Brown. All of the band members were experienced in musical styles other than rock, and so brought influences of jazz, country, folk, gospel and Latin music to the band, blending them into a listenable and rhythmic breed of rock. Their music, although eclectic, is particularly conducive to dancing — an integral part of Joy of Cooking performances from the earliest days.

Significantly, Joy of Cooking spent a year in rehearsal before their first public gig, and waited for another three years to record their first album, titled "Joy of Cooking." This lengthy wait is reflected in the tightness of the album which is considered a minor classic by many, including those laymen and critics who placed it sixth in the Village Voice poll in 1971. The Joy's reputation, firmly established with this record, has been further reinforced by the release of "Closer to the Ground" (fall of 1971) and "Castles" (spring of 1972).

The success of the Joy of Cooking is explained, in large part, by the talent and expertise of its individual members. The focal point of the band is lead singer and guitarist, Terry Garthwaite. Born in Berkeley 34 years ago, Terry spent a number of years as a 'folkie', performing in Berkeley and North Beach coffee houses. Her musical influences have been broad and varied — from Josh White to Chris Conner — but are most strongly felt from black blues, folk and gospel singers. Terry's vocal intensity and the pervasiveness of strong rhythm in her original songs owe much to black musicians. "Did You Go Downtown", "Pilot", and "Humpty Dumpty", all Garthwaite tunes, are the most driving and rhythmic of the Joy of Cooking's material.

Ron Wilson, at age 40, is the Joy of Cooking's eldest member, and one of its earliest, having left his job as electronics technician at Berkeley's Space Science Laboratory in 1967 to play conga drums with Terry Garthwaite and Toni Brown. Much of the upbeat, exuberant quality of the Joy of Cooking's sound is due to Ron's distinctive conga style.

Trap drummer Fritz Kasten's background is strongly flavored with jazz, an influence readily evident in his intricate but subtle percussion work. Six-night hotel jobs, night clubs and casual union gigs were Fritz's mainstay before joining the Joy of Cooking, although he had also been a regular with Vince Guaraldi, and once did a brief stint with Big Brother & the Holding Co. in 1966.

Toni Brown, songwriter, pianist and back-up vocalist, retired from active performing in September of 1972. Preferring the creative atmosphere of a tranquil home to the tribulations of touring, Toni is now concentrating on songwriting and recording. She has written many new songs, several of which have been added to the Joy of Cooking repertoire. Her first independent recording venture is a country album recorded with Terry Garthwaite and a team of Nashville sidemen, entitled "Cross Country."

Stephen Roseman, a veteran of several Bar Area bands, was selected to succeed Toni on keyboards, Stephen plays with a strong, straight-ahead style that belies his rock 'n' roll background. Without sacrificing his own individual style, Stephen has managed to maintain the distinctive Joy of Cooking sound.

Happy Smith, on electric bass, replaced Jeff Neigher who has returned to classical music and occasional jazz sessions. Before their break-up last spring, Happy was the bassist with Joyous Noise, the acoustic-rock group who toured with the Joy of Cooking as part of Capitol's "Joy Wagon Tour". Their rapport, built over weeks of touring, made Happy the obvious choice when the Joy needed a bass player. Happy's bass licks are strong and steady, always supportive but never obtrusive, making him the perfect complement to the band.

After Toni's departure, Terry carried the entire vocal weight of the band. But intricate vocal interplay was one of the elements that both Terry and the Joy's audience had enjoyed most about the group. Early this year, two new female vocalists, Willow Wray and Julie Nicholas, were added to the group. Their spirited back-up vocals have provided a strong support for Terry's incredible improvisational singing: together, the three women really wail.

The Joy of Cooking's newest member is Glen Frendel, an established Bay Area studio musician who has been close to the group since the start of their career. Glen plays lead guitar, an instrument which has not, until now, been heard in the Joy of Cooking sound — the piano had always been the leading instrument.

Channel 38 looks at state legislature all day on Wednesday

Channel 38 will pre-empt all daytime programming to present "A Day at the State Legislature" on Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., bringing viewers in northeastern Wisconsin live color coverage of legislative activity for the first time.

The special broadcast will examine the total process of the state legislative system by showing the daily activity at the State Capitol as well as covering live action on the Senate and Assembly floors.

The program is being produced by WMVS, Channel 10 in Milwaukee and will be carried live by the stations of the Wisconsin Educational Television Network: Channel 10, Milwaukee, Channel 21 in Madison and Channel 38 in Green Bay. # FBI sharpshooter slays man holding hostage at airport in Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "He just wanted his kids and was at the end of his patience," said a former roommate of a man shot and killed by FBI marksmen. Early Monday morning, 25-year-old William H. Abernathy took two guns and two men to the top of a fuel tank at Portland International Airport. He threatened to blow up the 840,000-gallon tank by noon unless his ex-wife and two children were brought to him. One minute before the deadline, FBI agents shot an killed him. One of the other men had escaped earlier. The other man was shot.

Phillip Moss, the ex-roommate, earlier had climbed the tank to try to talk Abernathy into surrendering. "He told me he saw a lot of people die in Vietnam for a reason, and I told him I did not and he didn't want to see him die up there for no reason. But he said there was something for his action."

"Finally, after passing up early chances to disarm him, I went for his rifle. I got a hard hit near the stock, but Abernathy is too fast. He just jerked it out of my hand and pointed it at me. I knew it was over and I climbed down the tank stairs."

Moss said Abernathy felt his ex-wife, Nancy Lynn, was hiding his children—Jennifer, 3, and Scott, 9 months—from him. He had given up hope of ever seeing them again, Moss said.

"Gee, how proud he was of his children," Moss said. "He talked about them all the time and would show everybody their pictures."

Abernathy was killed eight hours after he ordered Gene Lloyd, his 56-year-old boss at Lockheed Air Terminal at the airport, and another man to climb the tower with him. The FBI sharpshooters shot Abernathy as he and Lloyd were descending a narrow spiral stair on the 50-foot tank.

Maybe he thought it was better this way. He never was able to cope with the problems in his life," said Dr. Loren Pankratz, a Veterans Administration psychologist who treated Abernathy for five months last year for emotional disturbance.

Calley clemency bid rejected, will try again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lawyer for convicted My Lai murderer Lt. William Calley says he will renew a petition for clemency after a new secretary of the Army is sworn in.

In his final day in the post, Army Secretary Robert Froehlike Monday refused Calley's appeal to reduce his sentence from 20 to 17 years. The reduction had been recommended by the Army-Air Force Clemency and Parole Board.

Georgia businessman Howard Callaway, a former Republican congressman, was to be sworn in today as secretary.

Seattle sniper hunted

SEATTLE (AP) — About 70 police officers searched in vain for a sniper whose bullets traced a deadly path from a wooded area to a highway during rush hour.

He killed one motorist and seriously wounded a truck driver during his brief rampage Monday evening. Another car was hit, but its driver was not hurt.

Authorities said the gunman apparently fired a high-powered rifle. A witness said eight or 10 shots were fired by the gunman, who was described as in his 20s.

Abraham Saltzman, 54, head of the property management department of a suburban Bellevue real estate firm, was the first victim. He was shot as his car turned onto an exit ramp of a major interchange on Interstate 405 just north of Washington 520.

His car left the ramp, went down an embankment and crossed another two-lane ramp before stopping. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Police said the second man hit was John Roger Mott, 22, who managed to pull his truck off the road. The Seattle truck driver remained in the intensive care unit of Bellevue's Overlake Hospital early today after undergoing four hours of surgery on his arm.

Hearing on pricing of auto repair jobs promised by Warren

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said Monday he intends to request a hearing on pricing practices of automobile repair shops.

Warren in remarks for the Wisconsin Automotive Trades Association, said auto dealers have billed consumers for more hours of repair work than actually performed.

Warren said a complaint is to be filed with the state Agriculture Department as a result of three hearings held by the Department of Justice last year.

Records of time which mechanics really spent on a given repair job, compared with the amount billed the customer on a flat-rate basis, were subpoenaed for the hearings, he said.

Warren said the dealers sampled billed 61,887 more hours of labor than their repairmen were even on the job last year.

"Our investigators have uncovered rather blatant and clear-cut violations of the statutes and administrative codes," Warren said.

"All we are seeking here is total disclosure and complete honesty in dealer-customer relations," he said.

"The FBI was correct in their action," Pankratz added.

He said: "I spoke to Abernathy with a bullhorn. I spoke to his ex-wife. I saw nothing to be accomplished in the meeting he demanded. I felt it would endanger the wife's life. She was reluctant too."

The ex-wife and the two children were flown to Portland by airport authorities from their home in Bellingham, Wash., 250 miles north of here. Abernathy never saw them.

"When Abernathy started down the ladder with the hostage, this was something we didn't expect," said Dr. Pankratz. "It was completely uncertain what he would have done on the ground once he had cover from automobiles."

"A decision had to be made in a split second. It was a situation where FBI had a clear shot at him on the ladder but nobody knew what would happen afterwards."

Lloyd said he and another Lockheed employe, Steven J. Dalling, were working at the airport when airport police notified him at 2:30 a.m. that Abernathy had been discovered trying to scale an airport fence.

"Abernathy asked me if he could sleep it off in my office," said Lloyd. "I told him, 'Bill, you're too drunk. Go home and sleep it off.'"

"He left but came back at 4:30, still drunk, with a rifle and a shotgun. He ordered Steve and me to the top of the tower. After about an hour he ordered Steve to go down and telephone his demand to see his wife to the airport police. Steve didn't come back."

Pankratz said Abernathy's emotional problems were rooted in his broken marriage. The doctor said Abernathy and his wife separated two weeks after their 1970 wedding and there followed a succession of reconciliations and separations culminating in divorce last summer.

Pankratz said: "He could never accept the divorce ... He kept trying for a reconciliation long after it was obvious that would never work. His ex-wife had made it clear to us she wanted nothing more to do with him. He just wouldn't accept that."

Calley's civilian lawyer, said after Froehlike's action that "when a new man comes in and gets his feet on the ground, we will certainly petition him."

"One of the two avenues that we have taken has now been closed," said Latimer. "What will happen now I have no way of assessing."

The clemency petition on which Froehlike acted was separate from Calley's appeal pending before the U.S. Court of Military Appeals.

Calley, 29, was a platoon leader during the infantry sweep that ended in the My Lai massacre in 1968. Since his conviction, he has been confined to quarters at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Milwaukee school named in FTC action

CHICAGO (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission said Monday a Milwaukee-based nationwide correspondence school must correct what the commission called unfair and deceptive practices.

The FTC said that Career Academy, Inc. of Milwaukee has 10 days to agree to a consent order correcting the practices or a formal complaint will be issued.

Jerome S. Lamet, assistant regional director of the FTC's Midwest office, said that the company's salesmen misinformed prospective students by telling them that diploma from its schools was equal to a college diploma. Lamet also said the company allegedly misrepresented the opportunities it offered by promising large starting salaries.

Tsar's escape seen as possibility

LONDON (AP) — Party leader says he believes the United States and Britain have evidence that the last tsar of Russia escaped the Revolution alive.

Jeremy Thorpe said the mystery of Tsar Nicholas II and his family, believed slain by the Bolsheviks in 1918, "is yielding up new secrets. The assassination version is increasingly open to doubt."

There have been frequently recurring stories that the tsar's daughter Anastasia escaped. But until now there has been little serious speculation that Nicholas II himself survived.

Thorpe spearheaded his inquiry in Parliament Monday night. He asked for publication of a June 1919 letter "containing details of the escape route" of the former tsar and his family, from Lord Harding of Penshurst to the late King George V. He also asked for details of communications between the British Foreign Office and "private or government citizens" in Washington since last May "regarding the rescue of Tsar Nicholas II in 1918-1919."

House of Commons authorities ruled Thorpe's questions out of order. But Thorpe, who refused to elaborate on his information, said he would pursue the issue.

Notes tell of killings

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A hundred pages of handwritten notes telling of hangings, ritualistic murders and sex acts may link a jailed man to the deaths of up to 26 women, State Attorney Robert Stone says.

If the manuscripts can be believed, he said, "I don't think the country has ever seen anything of the magnitude."

The man — serving a six-month sentence in Fort Pierce on an assault conviction — has not been charged in any of the crimes. But he has been questioned in the deaths of two Fort Lauderdale area teen-age girls whose skeletons were found on a remote beach April 1.

The manuscripts and other items, some of which were identified as belonging to murder victims and missing persons, were seized last month at the home of the suspect's mother, Stone said.

The notes were written in first-person story form. Also found were photos, drawings, gold-filled teeth, a purse and trinkets, authorities said.

The man was questioned in the deaths of Susan Place and Georgia Jessup, who disappeared from their Fort Lauderdale homes last September.

Evidence linking the man to the other deaths is circumstantial at this point, said Stone.

"There is no question that the pattern is the same, the same type of contact, the same type of girls," he said.

One of Stone's assistants is working to determine whether the jailed man can be placed in the locales of the other deaths, which police say include slayings in Iowa and West Virginia.

Stone said he has received calls from those two states, as well as Detroit, Philadelphia, St. Petersburg, Tampa, Palm Beach County and Orlando.
